PERSHING SAILS FOR NEW YORK ON THE LEVIATHAN

Commander Leaves Brest at 3 P. M. — Foch Goes Aboard Ship and Makes Farewell Address.

HIGH OFFICIALS PAY TRIBUTE TO GENERAL

Clemenceau Asks Him to Visit France Again So People May Show Appreciation of His Work.

By the Associated Press.
BREST, Sept. 1.—Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Forces, sailed from Brest today on the transport Leviathan for the United States. The steamer left port at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Marshal Foch came aboard the transport shortly before he sailed and made a feeling address to the departing American commander.

"In leaving France," said the Marshal, "you leave your dead in our hands, on our soil. We will care for them religiously and zealously, as bearing witness of the powerful aid you brought us. These dead will bring from America many thoughts of remembrance and pious visits, and will bind still more strongly our already close union."

"If," concluded the Marshal, "the clouds of war should gather again in the future, would not these dead rise from their tombs and make their voices heard once more by a world which already knows that the same cause, the cause of liberty, has united us since the time of Washington and Lafayette?"

Gen. Pershing replied by bidding farewell to France in the person of the Marshal, "to her gallant poilus, to her patriotic men and to her noble women." Then the General and Marshal Foch walked arm in arm to the gangplank, exchanging final salutes as the Marshal stepped ashore.

Crowd at Paris Station When Gen. Pershing Departs.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Sept. 1.—Premier Clemenceau, Foreign Minister Pichon and Capt. Andre Tardieu were among the high French officials who bade farewell to Gen. Pershing on his departure for Brest yesterday. The American Ambassador and his staff and the entire American peace delegation were present. There was a military escort of two companies.

In saying good-by to the American commander, M. Clemenceau declared that the French people never could express all the gratitude felt for the services he had rendered. The Premier urged Gen. Pershing to revisit France and afford the French an opportunity to show their appreciation of the work he had done in the great war.

A great crowd had gathered at the Invalides station to bid Gen. Pershing farewell as he started for Brest, whence he sails today for New York aboard the Leviathan, making the close of more than two years' service in France. For the past week Gen. Pershing has been surrounded by all the prominent French officials.

St. Louis General's party is his son, Thibault, and his brother, James F. Pershing, a Chicago merchant, who had recently for a business trip to France and England; Aids, Col. G. G. Quisenberry, John L. Hines from A. W. Brewster, and Brigadier General Fox Connor and W. A. Campbell.

Paris Papers Praise Work. Words on board the Leviathan will be all Aristides Moreno and Lieut. Colonel A. E. Kiegle and James C. Grison and many other Allied Headquarters officers. Lieut. Colonel Chamberlain, Counselor of the French Embassy at Washington, will make the voyage on the Leviathan.

Yesterday morning's Paris newspapers devoted much space to cordial and appreciative articles bidding farewell to Gen. Pershing who Friday morning will leave for New York.

In addressing the newspapers the General expressed his affection for and admiration of France and said he felt sure that the struggle between France and America had ended together would serve to cement the friendship of the two nations.

During the reception Gen. Pershing was asked what town had been the most poignant moment of the war.

TRUCE IN STRIKES URGED BY NEW YORK LABOR

Committee Proposes Industrial Peace for Six Months While U. S. Catches Breath.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Suspension of all strikes throughout the United States and the declaration of a labor truce on the basis of the status quo for six months or more to enable President Wilson to bring about a reduction in the cost of living is recommended in a report of a committee of the New York State Federation of Labor, made public here today.

Business men, it explained, were in a state of apprehension due to rapidly changing conditions since the signing of the armistice and "industry had been disturbed and dislocated to a degree never before experienced."

"Your committee is convinced," the report says, "that this condition is wrong and cannot be permitted to continue unless we—and by 'we' your committee means not labor alone but the people of the whole United States—wish to invite a disaster unparalleled in history. The people must be given a breathing spell. There must be a suspension of struggling for class and party advantage. All Americans must bend their backs to the oars and pull steadily against the storm-tossed waters until our boat again rides safely on the placid sea of prosperity."

The recommendations urge American organized labor to cease wage and hour controversies in order to increase production and restore normal conditions. They express the hope that no new strikes will be ordered except to relieve workers from "intolerable oppression."

The committee was appointed by James P. Holland, president of the federation, on July 23, and made its report after conferring with representatives of industrial, commercial, manufacturing, financial, transportation and other interests with a view to devising plans to lower the cost of living.

PARADE CALLED TOO EXPENSIVE

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The high cost of costumes is the cause assigned by labor leaders for not holding a Labor day parade in New York today. Ernest Bohm, secretary of the Central Federation Union, announced that the labor men felt impelled to forego the parade because of the high prices of the costumes in which they have of recent years appeared in their annual march. Conditions of industrial unrest with many strikes on and with others pending also have tended to make the workers lose interest in the picturesque side of the celebration, he said. Brooklyn union men had their parade.

Lodge, Knox and other Republicans plan to remain in Washington where the treaty will be under consideration in the Senate and plan to make replies to the President from the floor.

WORKERS OF CITY PASS IN REVIEW COMPARABLE ONLY WITH ARMY FETES

Move Six Abreast for Three Hours and 14 Minutes Between Lines of Cheering Spectators in Most Extensive Display of Organizations' Strength.

MANY NEW UNIONS APPEAR FIRST TIME

Unprecedented Showing Reveals Growth of Organized Labor Since Last Year—Picnic at Forest Park Highlands.

Twenty-six thousand and eighty-three men and women, members of St. Louis labor unions, marched in today's Labor day parade, which was the greatest demonstration ever given by organized labor here, which compared in size and in the enthusiasm of its reception, with the chief patriotic pageants of the war period.

The line, in close formation, was three hours and 14 minutes in passing the corner nearest the starting point. This was a longer time than was taken by the preparedness parade of June 3, 1916, which surpassed the subsequent war demonstrations in numbers. The number of marchers in the preparedness parade was 27,412, and the line was two hours and 55 minutes in passing.

Last year's Labor day parade, which began in a drenching rain, and which was further reduced in number by the absence of many men in military service, had 19,553 marchers.

Accurate counts of today's marchers, and of those in the previous parades mentioned, were made for the Post-Dispatch by P. E. Purcell and his assistants. Purcell is assistant auditor of the Wabash Railroad. He is in charge of the preparation of election returns for the newspapers at every election and his assistants are trained enumerators.

Many Soldiers in Line.
Twelfth street, where the line formed, has not seen such a throng and such a holiday spirit since it was the pillar of Court of Honor for the return of St. Louis' soldier heroes. The pylons and the grand stand of the court have disappeared, but many of the soldiers were in the street again today, some in their service uniforms and overseas caps, some in civilian garb, as members of the various subdivisions of Labor's host.

It was no thin or straggling line that marched over the downtown streets, Chestnut, Broadway and Washington avenues, and out Locust street from Twelfth to Leffingwell avenue. Everywhere the command was "close up," not "spread out." Six abreast was the marching order, but often a seven and an eighth man were beside the allotted half-dozen. When women workers came in automobiles, the machines were in close formation.

This close formation prevented even the service men from showing much of their military training, and there was not much attempt to keep step or to preserve a rigidly straight line. In most of the subdivisions individual American flags were carried, and a large flag, or two flags, headed every subdivision, with some flags and service flags carried horizontally.

Broad Ribbon of Color.
The parade was in seven divisions, and the first two of the divisions were 55 minutes in passing the corner nearest the starting point. At 10:15 a. m., Chestnut street, west from Twelfth as far as the red towers of St. John's Church at Sixteenth street, was a broad ribbon of color, with the banners of subdivisions waiting to join in the parade, and there were others beyond Sixteenth, out of view from the starting point.

Twelfth street, south of Olive, was first filled with automobiles and marchers waiting to enter the line from Olive and Pine streets. These joined the parade within the first hour, but a mass still remained on Twelfth street, south of Chestnut, moving into the line from Market street and the city hall plaza.

While long sections of the parade were still waiting to start, the head of the line had disbanded at Leffing-

...all avenue, and the members had started for Forest Park Highlands, the scene of the afternoon and evening picnic.

Marchers Take Off Coats.

The cool air of the early morning brought out a great attendance of the union men and women, with the exception of a few whose employment required them to be on duty. The coolness also caused many of the workers to wear their coats, and these were being carried on their arms before the line of march had gone far.

White canvas hats and white shirt waists were worn as uniform garb in some parts of the line, but this was not so general as in past years. In some of the divisions the men preferred to wear straw hats, which in many cases were finely woven panamas. Some of the laborers' divisions wore blue shirts and lightweight black or gray hats of near-silk texture.

The great growth of labor organizations in St. Louis in the past two years was shown in the composition of the parade. Last year a drenching rain prevented a general representation in the Labor day parade, and many men were absent in army service. Today, with perfect weather and a full quota of workers, the unions made an unprecedented showing of numerical strength.

Many New Unions in Line.

It was noticed that the large silk banners which the various localities carried, besides the United States flag, were new, and that the date of organization, which appeared on their reverse side, was in many cases 1918.

One of the biggest of the new elements in the parade was the great body of railroad clerks, which was 15 minutes in passing. The clerks' union has existed for 20 years or more, but this was its first appearance in large numbers. This part of the line, heading the third of the seven divisions, carried the first large display of inscriptions, and all were in advocacy of the Plumb plan of railroad control.

The start of the parade, signaled by a bomb, was made with absolute promptness at promptness caused some men in the first part of the procession to miss the start. These stragglers were joining the line at various points along Chestnut street and Washington avenue.

Governor and Mayor Walk.

Mayor Kiel and Gov. Gardner, accompanied by Charles J. Lammer, president of the Building Trades Council, near the head of the parade, immediately behind the grand marshal and others who were on horseback. An automobile was provided for the Governor and Mayor, with their starting out to ride, but they came to the parade on foot.

A. Henry, let's walk, and both got out. The Mayor, who was once a bricklayer, wore a delegate's green pennant on his sleeve, and Gardner had a gray and white hat.

The first division, with President Lammer as division marshal, comprised the allied trades of the council, with the steam engineers as the first large subdivision.

The telephone girls of the Bell and Kinloch companies were in this division, in two sections. The bridge and structural iron workers, who followed them, carried placards in the line.

The firemen, oilers and helpers carried some banners which seemed to relate to the demand of the city waterworks employees for higher wages. One was, "If the cost of living won't come down, our wages must go up." Another was, "We work while you sleep." "All power originates with us," was another of the sentences on the banners.

Display Painters on Scaffold.

The painters and decorators carried aloft what seemed, from a distance, to be a Punch and Judy show, but it was seen at close range to be a scaffold, with two painters in effigy. A group of overseas soldiers was in line with the painters. The sign painters had a brilliant ethereal painting of an allegorical figure on the silk banner of their localities.

The first of a number of large groups of negro laborers appeared in the ranks of the building trades. They wore neat blue hats of silk texture.

Striking car makers were included in the first division, and several overseas men carried their banner, which was followed by others inscribed, "We fought for democracy abroad, and we are fighting for democracy here."

The second division was headed by the publishing trades, the typographical union in the lead. The Post-Dispatch and Republic chapters of the union carried special banners. The printers did not wear uniform garb of any kind, but they did wear it with flowers by wearing various floral decorations. Sunflowers were the favorite, but carnations were also used.

The waitresses came next in automobiles. No flippers were the con-vivances of these green-capped and vivacious young women. They rode in seven-passenger cars, some of them limousines, and there was no crowding in the seats, though the cars kept close together. They carried signs advising a certain restaurant proprietor to "get next," and advising him that "We don't start anything we can't finish." A United States Army recruiting automobile followed the waitresses.

The theatrical brotherhood and moving picture operators were in this division, and their members answered questions as to the whereabouts of the striking actors by declaring that they were winning their strike.

A truck camouflaged as a locomotive preceded the switchmen, its bell ringing realistically. Banners advocating the Plumb plan were borne by the switchmen, one of them reading, "The coming of the railroad should be postponed until Congress has an opportunity to formulate a plan for public ownership."

The street railway employees, who were represented in last year's parade, had their first big representation

President to Call Labor and Capital in Conference

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—PRESIDENT WILSON'S Labor day message was made public at the White House today.

"I am encouraged and gratified by the progress which is being made in controlling the cost of living. The support of the movement is widespread and I confidently look for substantial results, although I must counsel patience as well as vigilance because such results will not come instantly or without team work."

"Let me again emphasize my appeal to every citizen of the country to continue to give his personal support in this matter, and to make it as active as possible. Let him not only refrain from doing anything which will tend to increase the cost of living, but let him do all in his power to increase the production; and further than that, let him at the same time carefully consider in the matter of consumption. By common action in this direction we shall overcome a danger greater than the danger of war. We will hold steady a situation which is fraught with possibilities of hardship and suffering to a large part of our population; we will enable the processes of production to operate in the face of the cost of consumption; and we will speed the restoration of an adequate purchasing power for wages."

"I am particularly gratified at the support which the Government's policy has received from the representatives of organized labor, and I earnestly hope that the workers generally will emphatically indorse the position of their leaders and thereby move with the Government instead of against it in the solution of this greatest domestic problem."

"I am calling for as early a date as practicable a conference in which authoritative representatives of labor and of those who direct labor will discuss fundamental means of bettering the whole relationship of capital and labor and putting the whole question of wages upon another footing."

"WOODROW WILSON."

The proposed conference, it was stated, authoritatively, would be called to meet some time after President Wilson returns at the end of September from his speech-making tour of the West. It was thought likely that the meeting would be held at the White House, as was the reconstruction conference of Government and labor last spring.

Proposals that a conference between labor and employers be held have been urged from a number of quarters. Secretary Lane expressed the belief in a statement a few days ago that the President should call such a meeting. Resolutions are pending in both houses of Congress urging that workers and employers be brought together.

STRIKING MINERS WALKOUT OF RAILROAD LABORERS THREATENED

Belleville Insurgents Try to Get Workers to Join Ranks—Hope to Reach Marissa Tonight.

Insurgent coal miners of Belleville, who started yesterday afternoon on a march through Southern Illinois to "pull out" the miners who have not joined the strike, reached New Athens, 14 miles from Belleville, at 2 o'clock this morning. They left there at 11:30 a. m. for Lenzburg and expect to be in Marissa tonight.

The column of 196 men, which left Belleville at 2:30 yesterday afternoon, reached Freeburg, seven miles, at about 5 o'clock. There were few people on the streets as they marched into the town, but they greeted them with a cheer. They marched to the ball park, where, after a supper of bread and sausage, coffee and hot coffee cake, they held a mass meeting.

Freeburg Men Undecided.

Most of the 250 Freeburg miners attended. Leaders of the marchers appealed to them to quit work and give their financial and moral support to the marchers. The Freeburg men were divided. Some of the men expressed misgivings about the success of the movement and declared that they would not have gone back to work if they had been properly organized by the strikers' Policy Committee. It was decided to have a meeting of the Freeburg men this forenoon to decide whether they would join the strike.

Sleep in Opera House.

The marchers voted to continue to New Athens instead of camping at Freeburg. They marched along the highway and when they reached New Athens they were permitted to sleep in the opera house.

By breakfast time the field kitchen was ready for business and the men were served with a hot army stew, vegetables, coffee and rolls.

A meeting was held at the City Park, at which the New Athens miners voted to contribute $50 to the expenses of the movement and a collection was taken up among non-member miners, which netted $18. Five of the New Athens men accompanied the column when it left at 11:30 for Lenzburg. A meeting was to be held there, after which the marchers were to push on to Marissa.

"Army" Is Organized.

The "army" was organized at the close of a mass meeting yesterday at Hitching's Hall, in Belleville, at which they were told by their leaders that the march was a "military" one and that they were to be organized as an army. The marchers had no power to revoke their union charters because that power was reposed by the constitution in the international president and the executive committee of the international organization.

Dan Slinger of Glen Carbon was elected Colonel, Luke Coffey and Ewald Leutscher Majors, Ray Taylor Captain and James Taylor chief of the commissary department. The "army" was divided into companies of about 25, each in charge of a Sergeant. The men, marching by twos, started in "heavy" equipment, including a tin can of soup, a tin cup and a spoon. They were dressed in their working clothes and hobnailed shoes.

Commissary Supplies.

The commissary consisted of a one-horse wagon loaded with a camp stove, one case of milk, one case of tomatoes, one case of soap, nine wash basins, a washtub, 25 pounds of ground coffee, 25 pounds of sugar, one pound of pepper, 24 sacks of salt, 21 pounds of tea, 213 pounds of navy beans, 10 bushels of potatoes, one-half bushel of onions, 160 pounds of ham and bacon, 50 and 20 private detectives to break the strike.

Between 30 and 50 deputies sworn in by Sheriff Little.

The miners at Edwardsville who want to return to work have been guaranteed protection by the Sheriff. The insurgent miners from Maryville and Cuba who do not want to return to work and do not want the others to return, said they will see to it that the Edwardsville men do not resume.

At Glen Carbon a similar condition exists. The striking miners there have announced that they will return to work tomorrow but the insurgents say they will do nothing of the kind. There was trouble at Glen Carbon Saturday when the insurgents met about 200 men on their way to work. Men in each crowd were accompanied by a private institution. The men did not go back to work.

Baker Gives Employees at Rock Island Arsenal a Voice in Management

Experiment in Principle of Democracy as Applied to Manufacturing Industry Tried in Harness Shops.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Actual control of the production activities of the Rock Island Arsenal harness shops, including appointment of foremen and the determination of prices to be paid workmen, has been turned over to committees of the employees. This became known when Secretary Baker made public correspondence between the War Department and representatives of the employees. Matters of administration are left with the regular management, but even bids submitted on contracts are influenced by the committees.

In carrying out the new plan, which is characterized in the correspondence as "the first recognition of the principle of democracy as applied to the manufacturing industry," an arsenal orders branch has been established in the Ordnance Department here to obtain orders from other governmental agencies. An Advisory Committee of employees' representatives is included in this branch who actively assist in figuring cost when bidding for work.

Official reports to Secretary Baker assert that the result has been not only greatly increased efficiency and contentment among the men, but has radically reduced manufacturing costs. Two examples cited are orders for mail locks, formerly costing

MOVING MEN VOTE TO STRIKE TOMORROW

Packers and Chauffeurs Demand 9-Hour Day—Controversy Over Overtime.

Moving and storage companies likely will be confronted with a strike of packers, chauffeurs, drivers and helpers tomorrow, if the force demands for more wages and shorter hours. Local No. 751, Furniture Drivers and Movers' Union, decided to take this action at a meeting yesterday, after reflecting a compromise offer made by the employers.

The men demanded a nine-hour day at 60 cents an hour for packers, chauffeurs and drivers, and 55 cents an hour for helpers. The employers offered a flat weekly rate of $37 for packers, chauffeurs and drivers and $32 for helpers; straight time for overtime and the nine-hour day. At present the packers, chauffeurs and drivers are getting 40 cents an hour and the helpers $21 weekly.

Ben A. Langan, president of the Langan Fireproof Storage and Moving Co., 5201 Delmar boulevard, said today that the principal point in controversy was the question when overtime should begin. The men demanded that the regular working hours run from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. and that overtime pay start at 6 o'clock. The employers did not want to begin paying for overtime until 5:30 p. m., Langan said. He declared that usually the men could not finish with their day's work until around 5:30.

The meeting yesterday of employees it was decided to make the strike effective today, but as this is a holiday, the full effect will not be felt until tomorrow. According to Thomas E. Coyne, president of the "Teamsters' District," the strike has the sanction of union officials. The moving business will be completely tied up, he said.

ACTORS CLAIM VICTORY IS IN SIGHT WITH NEW CONTRACT

Hunted Managers Will Try to Open New York Theaters With Fidelity League Members.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—While it is not stated that the Producing Managers' Protective Association intends to recognize the Actors' Equity Association, the fact that the association of actors' contract announced, it is strongly hinted that the managers are planning an attempt to open the strike-bound theaters with players furnished exclusively by the rival Actors' Fidelity League.

Officials of the Equity claim victory is "in sight" as a result of the managers' new contract, that would permit actors to select officials from "an association" to act as arbitrators in the settlement of any differences arising under the contract. The new contract grants virtually all of the Equity's demands save that for unequivocal recognition of the Equity.

Frank Gillmore, secretary of the Equity Association, made public a letter from Samuel J. Winter, warning the actors that he believes them wrong in disclaiming any thought of insisting upon the "closed shop." Unless they win a "closed shop," he declared, it would be but a short time until the managers by discrimination against Equity members would wreck the organization.

An important development is expected tonight when members of the Motion Picture Players' Association will meet to discuss plans for aiding the striking actors. They have pledged support to the strike and threats have been made that the motion picture players will walk out if the producing managers continue in their refusal to recognize the Equity Association.

war. After an instant's reflection he replied:

"I was when the armistice was signed. It was then we knew the victory was ours and that our dead had not died in vain."

Says He Has No Plans for Future.

When asked about his plans for the future Gen. Pershing responded: "I haven't any. At all events, don't attribute any to me." A warm tribute was paid to Gen. Pershing by Andre Tardieu, head of the General Commission for France-American war matters.

"Frenchmen always will remember this commander, who with Foch, Poincaré and Haig, brought about the defeat of Germany and liberated our soil," Capt. Tardieu said. "I, who on so many occasions for two years collaborated with him, never forget the high qualities of integrity, firmness, intelligence and good heartedness that he displayed. It is a great friend of ours who leaves us. He will remain constantly in the thoughts of all of us and personally I always shall retain for him a deep affection."

LIFE SAVED IN 5-STORY DROP

Chicago Man Hits Wire, It Colls About Him and He Falls to Fire Escape.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—John Malcolm Hart, head of the John M. Hart company of Evanston, was saved from death yesterday when he dropped from the roof of the Chicago Athletic Club 12-story building. He struck a steel tele. cable and he had fallen five stories. The cable snapped and wrapped around his body and then unwound, and he dropped to a fire escape at the seventh floor, where he was rescued, after trying to leap to the ground, it is said.

The police reported that he fell from the building while attempting to swing out on a wire cable which supported the smokesack of an adjoining office building. Friends declared Hart had recently suffered a nervous breakdown due to overwork, and was under the care of a physician. This morning physicians at the Chicago Athletic Club reported that he had a chance to live.

MINERS REQUEST U. S. INQUIRY INTO DEATHS AT STEEL PLANT

Messages to President Say Aged Man and Woman Were Shot Down by Company's Guards.

By the Associated Press.

By the Associated Press.

President Wilson has been asked by the United Mine Workers of America to order a Federal investigation of the alleged "murder," Aug. 26, of an aged man and a woman at the Shenandoah District, Kan., by the company's mine guards, "disguised as deputies," placed there during a strike which began six weeks ago in connection with an attempt to unionize the mine.

Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor made public messages sent the President by John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers, and Philip Murray, president of the organization's Western Pennsylvania district, urging a thorough investigation to fix responsibility for the shocking crime which has aroused our entire membership.

One of the alleged victims, a miner 50 years old, was overtaken by a deputy while walking peacefully down the street, Murray charged, and beaten into a "helpless pulp" after which another deputy fired five bullets at the man. A few minutes later another deputy was ordered by the superintendent of the mine, the message charged, to "kill" Mrs. Fannie Sellins, an organizer sent into the district by the United Mine Workers, who, standing nearby, it was said, had appealed to the deputies to spare the miner's life. At the superintendent's order, it was said, Mrs. Sellins turned to flee and then was shot in the back and killed by one of the deputies.

EAST ST. LOUIS PARADE ONE HOUR PASSING ONE POINT

Packing House Employees and Railroad Men Predominate—Signs Advocate Plumb Plan.

Packing house employees and members of the railway crafts today made up more than half of the longest Labor day parade ever held in East St. Louis. It required precisely an hour for the marchers, walking four abreast, to pass a given point.

The most noticeable features were banners advocating the Plumb plan, carried by the railway brotherhoods. Some banners with defiant pro-Union messages also were carried by the packing house workers. One of the brotherhood banners read:

"The Plumb plan is dedicated to the consumers of America." Another read: "These three shall carry Labor, public management." A third read, "The Plumb plan means cheaper passenger rates and better service." A fourth, "The Plumb plan means share and share alike," and another, "Grant and privilege must cease."

Banners referring to the welfare associations promoted by the packers among the employees, and to the packers' plan of selling stock to employees, read: "We don't fall for the packers' stock-selling plan," and "We want the packers' welfare," our welfare is the butchers' union."

The high cost of white silk hats resulted in most of the parades being without that customary distinguishing badge. A majority of the marchers wore their working clothes. Arrangements for the parade were better planned than for any previous parade there. There was no confusion and the march started on schedule time.

Policemen in Line.

For the first time, 20 members of the policemen's union were in line, two members of the firemen's union.

The Grand Marshal was City Commissioner Michael J. Whalen, who also is president of the Central Trades and Labor Union. Assistant marshals were John W. Mitchell, Thomas Duffy and Frank Farrell.

Forming at City Hall Park, the parade went south on Main street to Bond avenue, east to Fourth street, north to Collinsville avenue, and along Collinsville to Summit avenue, east to Ninth street, south to Missouri avenue, and west to the starting point, where it disbanded. East of Jones Park and Polo Park, where celebrations were scheduled.

Main street and Collinsville avenue were lined with spectators, and cheering for the marchers was continuous. There were several demonstrations when the banners advocating the Plumb plan were carried past. There were 43 unions in line.

The committee of the strike Policy Committee of the international union, which is being distributed on the march, it is asserted that the power to revoke the charters of local unions has been assumed by the State union officials, whereas such action only be taken by the national officials. They are signed by David Reid and Harry Price.

WILSON DECLINES TO SEND TENTATIVE DRAFTS TO SENATE

Writes That to Furnish Uncompleted Treaties Would "Tend to Take Function
From Executive."

ALSO WITHHOLDS JUNE 16 DECLARATION

Lodge Replies That Rhine Arrangement Already Has Been Published and Was Submitted in England.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—President Wilson declined today to give the Senate Foreign Relations Committee the tentative drafts of treaties with Austria, Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria, as requested by the committee, on the ground that "it would tend to take the function of negotiating treaties out of the hands of the executive."

In a letter to Chairman Lodge, President Wilson said that as the treaties still were in process of negotiation, he considered it "out of the question" to give the tentative drafts. Senator Lodge wrote in reply that the committee had asked only for such information as it would be compatible with the public interest to give, and added that the decision as to whether it was expedient to give any information about them at all undoubtedly rested with the President.

Refuses Another Request.
At the same time the President refused the committee's request for the declaration of June 16 signed by the United States and other Powers to cover military occupation of the Rhine.

"A certain degree of embarrassment" would be caused, President Wilson wrote, if the declaration were made public now.

Senator Lodge replied that the declaration already had been printed in the Congressional Record, having reached members of the committee through British sources. Mr. Lodge had been submitted to the House of Commons July 4.

The treaty with Poland, and another Rhine agreement, that of June 26, which also was asked for, went to the Senate by the President last Friday.

Read Objects to Special Treaty.
Whether the special defensive treaty with France is constitutional was discussed today by the full Senate Judiciary Committee, but action went over until the next meeting of the committee, two weeks hence.

A subcommittee had reported there was no constitutional barrier to ratification of the treaty, but Senator Reed, Democrat, of Missouri and others opposed that view and objected to an immediate report by the full committee.

The Foreign Relations Committee held no session today. Tomorrow it will resume its public hearings and also take up proposed amendments to the treaty with Germany.

St. Louis Hero Photographed on His Arrival at New York

SERG. MICHAEL B. ELLIS

SERG. MICHAEL B. ELLIS of St. Louis, whose capture of 53 Germans and their 10 machine guns, is one of the outstanding feats of single-handed gallantry of the war, returned to New York with the first combat troops of the First Division, as was told exclusively in yesterday's Post-Dispatch. His heroism was the Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest award in the power of the United States. The Cross of the Legion of Honor, the highest award in the power of France, and the Croix de Guerre, his highest honor, were conferred on him by the French government. Mr. and Mrs. B. Moczykowski, at 1308 Cass avenue, he is a member of C. Company, Twenty-eighth Infantry.

A Post-Dispatch correspondent who met him at the pier in New York described him as follows: "The much-decorated Sergeant is 5 feet 6 inches tall. He is a broad-shouldered, deep-chested young man who, with all his experiences, has not forgotten how to smile. He says he is 22. He looks easily several years younger. His blue eyes are wide-set and level and cool. Capability and character are stamped all over him."

The official description of his feat by the War Department was: "Operating far in advance of the first wave of his company, voluntarily undertaking the most hazardous mission and single-handed attacking and reducing machine gun nests. Planked on an enemy's tank, killing two Germans and capturing 17 others. Later, single-handed, advanced under heavy fire and captured 27 Germans, including two officers and six machine guns, which were holding back his company. Informed by the captured officers of four other machine guns, captured these, one after another with their crews."

HIGH PRICES ATTRIBUTED BY M'ALLISTER TO SPECULATION

Attorney-General in Statement Declares Investigation Shows Little Profit-Feeling by Retailers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 1.—Attorney-General McAllister in a statement issued last night discussed food prices as follows:

"Reports from nearly two-thirds of the counties of the State show that the more essential food products have at least doubled, and some of them tripled, in cost to the consumer in the last four years, and they show that present prices of most of them are higher than they were a year ago."

"I have found few instances in which the high prices were due to excessive or unusual profits by retailers."

"There are, however, many indications that speculation has substantially contributed to prevailing costs. Stories are current in trade circles of large profits, followed by big jumps in process, having been made by the speculators in food commodities. One concern is said to have quite recently bought the country's supply of Lima beans and forced an increase of 3 cents a pound in the price."

"I am convinced that the country cannot longer afford to tolerate speculation in the essential food commodities."

POLICE BREAK DOWN 3 DOORS IN EFFORT TO FIND DICE GAME

They Arrest 34 Men, but Fail to Get Evidence After Watching Place Two Weeks.

After Police Lieutenant Stinger of the gambling squad had watched the quarters of the Fifth Ward Democratic Club at 421 Franklin avenue for two weeks, he ordered a raid on the place at 2 a. m. Sunday. The raiders had to break down three doors before they got into a room in which Stinger said he was sure a craps game had been under way.

When the policemen got in they arrested 34 men, but failed to find evidence to support a charge of gambling.

Lieut. Stinger told today of the difficulties he encountered. "For two weeks the police have been stationed outside the club," he said. "Yesterday at 2 a. m. he reported a 'mob' inside. Opaque glass prevented our seeing anything from the outside, so we decided to rush the place. We encountered two lookouts on the outside, ran them down the street and forced the door. Inside we found another lookout and a buzzer. We went upstairs and at the head found a 50-cent lookout. We broke down that door and reached the door leading to the rooms proper, breaking that in also. Those inside had had time to engage in pool and billiard games and all evidence of gambling had disappeared. There was a safe that rattled with money when we shook it. No one knew the combination, the men said, except the 'president' of the club and none knew who the president was."

Joseph Connors, 22 years old, who said he lived at the Holland Hotel, was in charge of the room, Stinger reported. The 33 other men gave their addresses and registered as salesmen and clerks. One of the men said he was Harry Lavin, 29 years old, a Deputy Constable, 314 O'Fallon street.

Lieut. Stinger said that Connors was the man who drove a party of men to the home of Mrs. Frances Posey, 4446 Lindell boulevard, last Jan. 2, a quarrel among the men in the house resulting in the murder of Porter E. White, 46 years old, a deputy constable, who claimed to have lost money in the game.

DERELICT WHO IS SISTER'S HEIR SAYS NEWS "CAN'T BE TRUE"

Arrangements Made for Richard Arnold to Get Income From Estate Left Him.

Richard Arnold, 46 years old, a Market street derelict, who has fallen heir to the estate of more than a thousand dollars of his sister's Curriton, Mo., was found this morning by Mayor Daniel Heins of Carrollton, who came to St. Louis several days ago in search of him. Arnold had been discovered by Julius F. Schonebeck, 1714 Glasgow avenue, who knew Arnold when he was a working musician.

Schonebeck, after reading in the Post-Dispatch of Arnold's good fortune, set out to find him on Market street, finally discovering him in front of Father Dempsey's Hotel at 1110 North Seventh street Saturday night.

"I can't be true. Nobody in the world thinks enough of me to leave me any money," Arnold told Schonebeck, but he went with him to the Carr street station, where he was found this morning by Mayor Heins. Arnold blamed his downfall on liquor. He said that if he could get possession of the money he would be "on his feet" again. The Mayor and Arnold visited the estate where the income from the estate were made. Arnold said he would remain in St. Louis.

TALLEST WOMAN IN ST. LOUIS ARRESTED ON CHECK CHARGE

Georgia Leach Tells Police She Just Can't Let Other People's Bank Accounts Alone.

In addition to being the tallest woman that ever occupied a cell at Central Police Station Miss Georgia Leach, 21 years old, of Jonesboro, Ark., admits that she "just can't keep hands off other people's bank accounts."

"I'm the biggest nut in the world," she said to detectives who arrested her at Twelfth and Market streets last night after they had searched for her several days.

On January 28, this year, Miss Leach was arrested on a description asserting that she was the cash woman in St. Louis. She is 4 feet 3 inches tall. She had purchased a $50 coat at the Sternberg Garment Co.'s store, 716 Washington avenue, and had paid for it with a check belonging to Mrs. Mary Rochester, 2228 Locust street. Miss Leach served six months in jail for that offense.

One day last week a woman presented a check for $50 made payable to Mrs. Helen Miller, 3739 Finney avenue, at the Bank of Commerce and received the money. Later Mrs. Miller reported that she had paid the check and said that the woman who had it cashed was the tallest woman she had ever seen. When that fact was related to detectives they set out in search of Miss Leach.

"I was just on my way to the police station to give myself up," said Miss Leach when the detectives met her last night. "I just got out of jail 11 days ago and here I am on my way back again. I'm the biggest nut in the world."

The children who took part in the play showed such talent that it was decided to give an evening performance to afford the general public an opportunity to see the work of the children and become interested in the development of recreational system here.

The Municipal Theater stage is an ideal setting for the fairy play and the children of the Municipal Playgrounds are most charming nymphs, imps and other kinds of fairies. The "Papas Club" is financing the extra expenses which will amount to $5 p. m. There will be no admission charge.

COOPER'S SLAYERS SOON TO BE CAUGHT, SAY NASHVILLE POLICE

They Declare No Woman Was Connected With Mysterious Killing of Lawyer.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 1.—"Robin J. Cooper, who was killed by two or more men and the murderers will soon be apprehended," was the statement made by Police Chief Barthel this morning. It is now said no woman was connected in any way with the tragedy, so far as the police know.

In pursuing a suggestion that Cooper, who in 1908 shot and killed a woman, had been in the city, he had been the victim of bootleggers, all men here suspected of connection with that traffic have been made to disclose their movements Thursday night when Cooper was called from his home in Belle Meade Park to see no more by the members of his household until Saturday, after his battered body had been found in a ditch near the city.

A housegirl in the Cooper home, Maude Perkins, says about 9 o'clock Thursday night she heard someone calling "Cooper, Cooper," and went to a window. She saw the shadow of the man who stood in the yard. The man did not come on the porch, but joined Cooper in the yard and went with him to the garage and left with him in the automobile.

The identity of the caller and the significance of Cooper's remark made as the automobile left the home, "If you had asked for more you could have had it," are believed to be the all-important questions involved in the extraordinary case.

Mrs. Cooper, who was visiting in Evanson, Ill., at the time of the tragedy, reached Nashville yesterday, accompanied by her father, Milton H. Smith of Louisville, president of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. Cooper's funeral was held today at Christ Church.

KNOXVILLE QUIET, TROOPS ON PATROL, AFTER RACE RIOT

Two Dead, Several Seriously Wounded; Total of Injured Following Mob Attack on Jail Is About 18.

UNIONS CALL OFF LABOR DAY PARADE

Use of Machine Guns Results in Accidental Killing of Lieutenant; Shops Pillaged for Firearms and Knives.

By the Associated Press. KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 1.—Quiet prevails throughout the city and suburbs today, after the race rioting of Saturday night and Sunday. There are military patrols in all the business section and in the territory where negro population is greatest. No disorder was reported through the night. Pedestrians and automobiles were ordered off the streets everywhere in the city at 10 p. m.

Despite the fact that today is a holiday, expected crowds did not appear on the streets during the morning. Groups of men are not permitted to gather. Negroes are searched for weapons.

Bishop S. J. Hargrave, a leading ministerial worker among the negroes of the city, issued an appeal to men and women of the race to maintain order and refrain from violence. He asserted that the trouble was due to the "lowest types of blacks and whites, and not to the better element of either race."

Grand Jury to Investigate. The charge against Maurice F. Mayes, negro, of killing Mrs. Bertie Lindsey, will be placed before the grand jury here Wednesday morning. At the same time the grand jury will investigate charges to be placed against a large number of citizens for alleged participation in the mob which broke into the county jail Saturday night in its search for Mayes.

The casualty list was increased yesterday by four negroes, who resisted attempts to search them for arms. All were wounded by National Guardsmen, two being shot and the other two stabbed with bayonets.

Two men are known to have been killed, 18 others, 8 white and 10 negroes, are in hospitals. Of these, four, two whites and two negroes, are not expected to recover. Sixteen wounded white men had their slight wounds dressed at one hospital.

The known dead are: First Lieutenant James W. Payne, Madisonville, Ky., regular army, and Joe Ector, negro. The injured in hospitals included Private P. V. Henderson of the Tennessee National Guard, who may die. Eleven hundred guardsmen of the Fourth Tennessee Infantry, under command of Adjutant-General D. B. Sweeney of Nashville and Col. Ewing Carruthers of Memphis, supplemented by 200 special policemen and 75 special Deputy Sheriffs, patrolled the city yesterday, dispersing crowds and searching all negroes.

Union leaders called off the Labor day parade and candidates abandoned all political meetings announced in connection with the campaign for municipal offices.

Lieut. Payne was killed accidentally early yesterday by machine gun bullets. He was 200 yards from the machine gunners, with several other officers, when the party was fired upon by negroes from a second-story window. Payne and his companions replied with their automatic rifles and sought cover. Just as Lieut. Payne stepped behind a telephone pole for protection from the negroes' bullets, the crew of a machine gun farther up the street opened fire upon a crowd of negroes advancing and shooting in the distance. Lieut. Payne fell into the arms of Capt. A. C. Parker of Memphis, with a dozen wounds in his legs and body. He died in an ambulance.

Member of Regular Army. Lieut. Payne was attached to the Forty-sixth Infantry, Regular army, and had been detailed to the command of the Fourth Tennessee as an instructor. He volunteered for duty when the riot call came Saturday night. His body was sent to Madisonville, Ky., last night.

There are few if any firearms to be found in any store in Knoxville as a result of raids made upon them during the rioting.

Jail Records Destroyed. The mob which broke its way into the jail, and the residence of Sheriff Cate, adjoining Saturday, was not satisfied with damaging property, but everything of value, including money, guns, whisky, clothing and books were taken. Some of the jail records were destroyed.

When the attack on the jail was made by the mob, Mayes had been taken to Chattanooga for safekeeping, but the mob declined to accept the ward of jail officers, and it was then in gaining entrance to the jail that the mob permitted 16 prisoners, several of the moonlighters of murder, to escape.

When guardsmen hurriedly were brought into the city, the mob spread to outlying parts of the city and sporadic rioting began.

MINE OWNERS TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS NOV. 17-21. Congress Will Hold Twenty-Second Annual Convention at Planters Hotel.

The twenty-second annual meeting of the American Mining Congress will convene in St. Louis at the Planters Hotel Nov. 17, and continue five days. At least two general sessions, with notable speakers, will be held in theaters.

The American Mining Congress never before has been induced to meet outside of the mining states in Chicago, which is looked upon as the Middle West headquarters for many of the more important mining corporations, but the Convention Bureau, backed by the directors and committees of the Chamber of Commerce and the Associated Industries of Missouri, has been carrying on negotiations for the big convention for more than a month. Secretary Hatfield visiting New York and Washington in this connection.

A few days ago the western secretary of the mining congress, John T. Burns of Denver, met with the directors and officers of the St. Louis commercial organizations, and as a result of his visit, and an exchange of telegrams between the officers of the congress, St. Louis was selected.

The headquarters for the convention will be in the Planters Hotel and the entire parlor floor, with both large and small dining rooms, will be occupied continuously by the main and divisional conferences.

President Wilson, the Secretary of the Interior, the Governors of states and members of both houses of Congress will be invited to attend the meetings, which will be devoted largely to an effort to prepare and present to the Congress of the United States a workable program for legislative enactment.

Industrial relations, transportation, production, anti-trust laws and deflation of currency will all be discussed in open forum, and the plans of labor radicals who desire to eliminate private holdings in all quasi-public utilities and to nationalize railroads, communication and coal mines will be given attention.

NEW YORK'S FAMOUS ALIMONY CLUB PASSES INTO HISTORY

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—New York's famous "Alimony Club" passed into history at midnight last night, and thousands of "slacker" husbands, who fancied themselves immune from payments by a "club" in Ludlow Street Jail, again will face the possibility of imprisonment.

The "Alimony Club" was made possible by a law providing that when a man refused to pay alimony, he should be committed to jail for a period of not more than six months. Thereafter he was immune from further payments or molestation.

Under an amendment to the code of civil procedure, however, effective at midnight last night, the husband who refuses to obey a Supreme Court order for alimony payment faces possible life imprisonment.

The amended law provides that the delinquent husbands may be jailed for contempt of court for every failure to pay installments as ordered by the court. He may be punished for contempt time after time—until he dies or reforms.

DANIELS REVIEWS GREAT FLEET AT GOLDEN GATE. From the Old Battleship Oregon Secretary Sees Ships Pass Into Harbor.

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—Forty-two gray giants of the American navy today steamed from their overnight anchorage off Bolinas Bay, north of San Francisco, and, piloted personally by Admiral Hugh Rodman, Commander-in-Chief, swept through the Golden Gate and passed the famous old battleship Oregon, the reviewing ship, in a marine spectacle which thrilled a multitude of spectators. It was the first time since May, 1903, when the Atlantic fleet visited this port on its tour of the world, had San Francisco been spectator to a naval review.

Majestically the long line of aircraft swept carefully through the storied Golden Gate, past the Presidio military reservation and the once impregnable old Fort Point, whose thick brick walls the engineers of civil war days built to withstand the solid shot of enemy frigates; past the modern forts Riley and Winfield Scott, on the San Francisco side of the harbor, and under the long range guns at forts Baker and Barry, hidden in the golden brown hills on the opposite shore, where Mount Tamalpais stands sentinel to the Golden Gate.

As the battleship Oregon was passed by the leading dreadnoughts Telegraph Hill, a landmark famed for its association with San Francisco's early history, came into view, its rocky slope thickly crowded with sightseers. Thence, the fleet swung into the upper bay past Goat Island and came to rest, while the harbor in response of national enshrinement from scores of welcoming craft.

Thence, the fleet swung into the upper bay past Goat Island and came to rest, while the harbor in response of national enshrinement from scores of welcoming craft.

The formalities began with the anchoring of the Oregon, commanded by Capt. Ivan Wettingell, off the old exposition grounds—now the Marina—at 10 o'clock. About 11, Mr. Daniels and the secretarial reviewing party boarded the historic vessel. As the Secretary reached the quarterdeck and the naval force for his advent was fulfilled, the big guns at Fort Scott boomed a salute of 19 guns.

By this time a long line of the fleet—coming single file—was approaching the gate, led by the dreadnought New Mexico and with the dreadnoughts Mississippi and Idaho following at intervals of 700 yards.

The next group, commanded by Rear Admiral R. E. Conz, was composed of his flagship, the dreadnought Wyoming and the dreadnoughts Arkansas, New York and Texas, following, preserving the distance of 700 yards between ships.

Vice Admiral Clarence S. Williams, on his flagship, the dreadnought Vermont, led the next group, which also included in this order the dreadnought Nebraska, the armored cruiser North Carolina, the dreadnought Georgia and the cruiser Seattle.

Rear Admiral Henry A. Wiley commanded the next group in his flagship, the cruiser Birmingham, and the destroyers Ludlow, Crane, Anthony, Williams, Chauncey, Sprout, Lamberton, Eberle, Ramsey, Radford, Gamble, Montgomery, Rathbun, Buchanan, Elliott, Tarbell, Dent, Philip, Yarnall, Tarbell, Welles, Woolsey, Lea, Ward, Rogers, Walker, Thatcher, Crosby and Palmer. They proceeded at intervals of 350 yards.

Each ship was "dressed" for the event. The derricks and booms were lowered into their places and secured. The Admiral flew his flag—a field of blue with four white stars—from the foremast, and the largest and newest American flags from main mast and stern. The flagship of the Vice Admiral bore a blue flag with three white stars from its foremast, and those of the two Rear Admirals blue banners with two white stars from the corresponding masts. The other vessels flew the national ensign at foremast and main mast and stern.

RIFLEMAN SAYS HE SAW CAPT. SKINKER KILLED. Kansas City Man Claims to Have Accompanied Officer in Heroic Fight.

David P. Baker of 2503 Forest avenue, Kansas City, a former private in I Company, 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, has written to the Post-Dispatch, saying that he is the Private Baker who was with Capt. Alexander R. Skinker of I Company, when Capt. Skinker lost his life in a heroic attempt to put a German machine gun nest out of action, in the fighting before Cheppy, Sept. 26, last.

Baker asks, in his letter, whether any award has been made to the men who accompanied Capt. Skinker, saying he has heard a report to that effect. The Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest decoration which can be conferred on an American soldier, was awarded posthumously to Capt. Skinker, and the record of his deed was included among Gen. Pershing's "One Hundred Best Stories of the War."

As was related in his citation, Capt. Skinker endeavored to silence a machine gun nest, which was a source of danger to his company, and himself went toward the position, with an automatic rifleman and an ammunition carrier. He was killed by fire from the position, which was afterward found to have been an emplacement of steel and concrete.

Attempts made, while the 138th was still in France last spring, to determine the identity of the men who were with Capt. Skinker, were not wholly successful. It was believed that two of the men were killed, and one of these was supposed to have been Private Maurice Walter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Walter of North Alton, Ill., whose body was found near that of the Captain. The other, it was reported, was a Private Baker, but his exact identity was not known, nor was it certain whether he had survived the engagement.

Corp. Harold Lockwood, who survived the Cheppy fight, was near Capt. Skinker at the moment of his death. Baker, in his letter, refers to Lockwood as knowing of his part in the Captain's feat.

Lockwood, when seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter, said Baker was with Capt. Skinker shortly before the Captain was killed, but he could not be sure of details as to Baker's part in the Captain's feat. He said Maurice Walter was the other man with Capt. Skinker.

Several events to stimulate recruiting for the army will be presented in Forest Park this afternoon and evening under the auspices of the Army Recruiting Service.

There will be an exhibition of machine gun firing at 4 o'clock in the southeastern corner of the park, 200 feet west of the Bates statue, by veterans who used machine guns against the Germans. The guns will be manned by 100 men of the regular army in command of Maj. Goodwin, recruiting officer for St. Louis.

Thirty thousand rounds of ammunition will be fired at targets on the banks of the River des Peres, 200 yards away. Captured German machine gun will be on exhibition, but will not be fired.

The Jefferson Barracks band will give a concert at 8 p. m. at Art Hill, and at the foot of the hill fireworks, including star shells, trench bombs, rockets and roman candles will be set off.

Harry Skates, 43, Found in Railroad Yards, Reported He Was Fired on From Top of Box Car.

Harry Skates, 43 years old, of 709 North Fifteenth street, died at St. Joseph's Hospital, Alton, at 3:35 a. m. yesterday, two hours after he had been found in the Big Four Railroad yards at East Alton suffering from a bullet wound in the chest.

He said that he had been shot by a stranger on top of a box car. He was so weak that surgeons were unable to get a further statement except that he had a sister, Mrs. Maud Michels, residing at the Fifteenth street address.

Mrs. Michels said her brother visited her only at intervals. She said his mother, Mrs. Sarah Skates, resided at Tampa, Fla.

An inquest will be held tomorrow night when the members of a Big Four train crew return to Alton.

MAN'S DISAPPEARANCE A PUZZLE

Denver Capitalist Last Seen in St. Joseph Saturday.

By the Associated Press.
ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Sept. 1.—The police have been unable to explain the mysterious disappearance here Saturday of William L. Tillotson, said to be a Denver (Colo.) capitalist.

Tillotson, who was visiting the home of Joel E. Gates, City Clerk, failed to return from a trip downtown. His coat, badly torn, and his straw hat crushed, were found by the police near the Missouri River bank. His pocketbook, said to have contained about $300 when he left the Gates home, was found near by. There was no evidence of a struggle.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 1.—The only William Tillotson residing in Denver is William L. Tillotson, a wealthy real estate dealer. Tillotson and his wife had been spending several weeks in the East and were expected home next week, according to servants.

FOR MORE PAY TO TEACHERS

The executive board of the Civic League wrote today to Dr. Henry L. Wolfner, chairman of the Board of Education, endorsing the proposed increase in teachers' pay. The board says in its letter:

"Teachers have long been underpaid, because they are not regarded as immediately necessary in an economic way to the community. The salaries which public bodies felt obliged to give them have been pitifully inferior to what the teaching work should receive. The high cost of living makes an increase in their remuneration absolutely necessary. Also, everyone realizes more and more the real value of the teacher, and that that value should be properly rewarded."

MINE OWNERS TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS NOV. 17-21

Congress Will Hold Twenty-Second Annual Convention at Planters Hotel.

The twenty-second annual meeting of the American Mining Congress will convene in St. Louis at the Planters Hotel Nov. 17, and continue five days. At least two general sessions, with notable speakers, will be held in theaters.

The American Mining Congress never before has been induced to meet outside of the mining states or in Chicago, which is looked upon as the Middle West headquarters for many of the more important mining corporations, but the Convention Bureau, backed by the directors and committees of the Chamber of Commerce and the Associated Industries of Missouri, has been carrying on negotiations for the big convention more than a month. Secretary of Hatfield visiting New York and Washington in this connection.

A few days ago the western secretary of the mining congress, John T. Burns, met with the directors and officers of the St. Louis commercial organizations, and as a result of his visit, and an exchange of telegrams between the officers of the congress, St. Louis was selected.

The headquarters for the convention will be in the Planters Hotel and the entire parlor floor, with both large and small dining rooms, will be occupied continuously by the main and divisional conferences.

President Wilson, the Secretary of the Interior, the Governors of states and members of both houses of Congress will be invited to attend the meetings, which will be devoted largely to an effort to prepare and present to the Congress of the United States a workable program for legislative enactment.

Industrial relations, transportation, production, anti-trust laws and deflation of currency will all be discussed. In open forum, and the plans of labor radicals who desire to eliminate private holdings in all quasi-public utilities and to nationalize railroads, communication and coal mines will be given attention.

The Chicago convention in 1916 was the largest and best ever and its deliberations have been reflected in a number of national enactments which have since been adopted by Congress.

NEW YORK'S FAMOUS ALMONY CLUB PASSES INTO HISTORY

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—New York's famous "Almony Club" passed into history at midnight last night, and thousands of "slacker" husbands, who fancied themselves immune from alimony payments by a sojourn at the "club" in Ludlow Street Jail, again will face the possibility of imprisonment.

The "Almony Club" was made possible by a law providing that when a man refused to pay alimony, he should be committed to jail for a period of not more than six months. Thereafter he was immune from further payments or molestations.

Under an amendment to the code of civil procedure, however, effective at midnight last night, the husband who refuses to obey a Supreme Court order for alimony payment faces possible life imprisonment.

The amended law provides that the delinquent husbands may be jailed for contempt of court for every failure to pay installments as ordered by the court. He may be punished for contempt time after time—until he dies or reforms.

DANIELS REVIEWS GREAT FLEET AT GOLDEN GATE

From the Old Battleship Oregon Secretary Sees Ships Pass Into Harbor.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—Forty-two gray giants of the American navy today steamed from their overnight anchorage off Bolinas Bay, north of San Francisco, and, piloted personally by Admiral Hugh Rodman, Commander-in-Chief, swept through the Golden Gate and passed the famous old battleship Oregon, the reviewing ship, in a marine spectacle which thrilled a multitude of spectators. It was the review here of the new Pacific fleet before Secretary of the Navy Daniels and other national, State and municipal officials. In addition to those in the review a train of nine supply and fuel ships later entered the harbor and cast anchor.

From every hill and structure overlooking the broad sweep of the harbor, thousands had gathered since early morning to view the spectacle. Not since May, 1903, when the Atlantic fleet visited this port on its tour of the world, had San Francisco been spectator to a naval review.

Majestically the long line of aircraft swept carefully through the storied Golden Gate, past the Presidio military reservation and the once impregnable old Fort Point, whose thick brick walls the engineers of civil war days built to withstand the solid shot of enemy frigates; past the modern forts Riley and Winfield Scott, gathered largely to an effort to prepare and present to the Congress of the United States a workable program for legislative enactment.

Industrial relations, transportation, production, anti-trust laws and deflation of currency will all be discussed. In open forum, and the plans of labor radicals who desire to eliminate private holdings in all quasi-public utilities and to nationalize railroads, communication and coal mines will be given attention.

The Chicago convention in 1916 was the largest and best ever and its deliberations have been reflected in a number of national enactments which have since been adopted by Congress.

By this time a long line of the fleet, coming single file, was approaching the gate, led by the dreadnought New Mexico and with the dreadnoughts Mississippi and Idaho following at intervals of 700 yards.

The next group, commanded by Rear Admiral R. E. Condit, was composed of his flagship, the dreadnought Wyoming and the dreadnoughts Arkansas, New York, Texas, following, preserving the distance of 700 yards between ships. Vice Admiral Clarence S. Williams, on his flagship, the dreadnought Vermont led the next group, which also included in this order the dreadnought Nebraska, the armored cruiser North Carolina, the dreadnought Georgia and the cruiser Seattle.

Rear Admiral Henry A. Wiley commanded the next group in his flagship, the cruiser Birmingham, and the destroyers Ludlow, Crane, Anthony, Williams, Chauncey, Sprout, Lambertson, Breese, Ramsey, Radford, Gamble, Montgomery, Rathburne, Buchanan, Elliott, Watrous, Dent, Philip, Yarnall, Tarbell, Wales, Woodley, Lee, Ward, Boggs, Walker, Thatcher, Crosby and Palmer. They proceeded at intervals of 350 yards.

Each ship was "dressed" for the event. The derricks and booms were lowered into their places and secured. The Admiral flew his flag—a field of blue with four white stars—from the foremast, and the largest and newest American flag from main mast and stern. The flagship of the Vice Admiral bore a blue flag with three white stars from its foremast, and those of the two Rear Admirals bore blue flags with two white stars from the corresponding masts. The other vessels flew the national ensign at foremast and main mast and stern.

RIFLEMAN SAYS HE SAW CAPT. SKINKER KILLED

Kansas City Man Claims to Have Accompanied Officer in Heroic Fight.

David P. Baker of 2508 Forest avenue, Kansas City, a former private in I Company, 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, has written to the Post-Dispatch, saying that he is the Private Baker who was with Capt. Alexander R. Skinker of I Company, when Capt. Skinker lost his life in a heroic attempt to put a German machine gun nest out of action, in the fighting before Cheppy, Sept. 26, last.

Baker asks, in his letter, whether any award has been made to the men who accompanied Capt. Skinker, saying he has heard a report to effect that the Congressional Medal of Honor, the highest decoration which can be conferred on an American soldier, was awarded posthumously to Capt. Skinker, and the receipt of his deed was included among Gen. Pershing's "One Hundred Best Stories of the War."

As was related in his citation, Capt. Skinker endeavored to silence a machine gun nest which was a source of danger to his company, and himself went toward the position, with an automatic rifleman and an ammunition carrier. He was killed by fire from the position, which was afterward found to have been an emplacement of steel and concrete.

Attempts made, while the 138th was still in France last spring, to determine the identity of the men who were with Capt. Skinker, were not wholly successful. It was believed that two of the men were killed, one of these was supposed to have been Private Maurice Walter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Walter of North Alton, Ill., whose body was found near that of the Captain. The other, it was reported, was a Private Baker, but his exact identity was not known, nor was it certain whether he had survived the engagement.

Corp. Harold Lockwood, who survived the Cheppy fight, was near Capt. Skinker at the moment of his death. Baker, in his letter, refers to Lockwood as knowing of his part in the Captain's feat.

Lockwood, when seen by a Post-Dispatch reporter, said Baker was with Capt. Skinker shortly before his death. Baker, in his letter, refers to Lockwood as knowing of his part in the Captain's feat. He said Maurice Walter was the other man with Capt. Skinker.

In his letter, Baker says: "I was the last man Capt. Skinker spoke to before he was killed. He was the automatic rifleman, whose gun Capt. Skinker was loading at the time of his death, and he died with a carrier of my pans slung over his shoulder."

"I have neglected writing for a long time, but my father has asked me to write. I can refer you to Corp. Lockwood, who was Capt. Skinker's runner, and next to myself, was closer to him than anyone else."

The name of Maurice Walter has been connected with Capt. Skinker's feat by several witnesses, including Corp. Fred Niemeyer of 5330 Clemens avenue, who was wounded on Sept. 28 and who is still in the hospital, and Private Sidney Abramson of 1336 Arlington avenue.

George E. Murray, 6254 Cates avenue, assistant counsel for the Mercantile Trust Co., reported he had been stopped by a highwayman at Eastgate and Clemens avenue at midnight Sunday. BURGLAR TAKES SILVER BUT CUTS UP 2 COATS

Clothing Evidently Was Too Small for Prowler—Eight Sunday Crimes Net Thieves $4025.

A full-dress coat and a Tuxedo coat, apparently too small for a burglar who robbed the home of E. J. Williams, 5732 Cates avenue, were slashed into shreds and left in the home while the thieves carried off jewelry and silverware valued at $450 in the last two weeks.

A front door at the home was found open Aug. 13 and the house found ransacked, but it was not known until yesterday what had been taken or what damage had been done as the family was out of the city. On their return yesterday they took an inventory.

Other burglaries reported yesterday were in the homes of Charles Linnebringer, 4540 North Broadway, jewelry and clothing, $225; Mrs. Emily Wakovic, 2764A La Salle street, jewelry, $150; and Oliver Gutman, 3718 Illinois avenue, trinkets, $100.

Mrs. Christina Winkler, 3741 Ohio avenue, left her handbag containing $85.11 on a Market car on a trip from Forest Park Highlands to Jefferson avenue. She waited for the car on the return trip. The conductor turned over the handbag to her. It contained the 11 cents but not the $85. The conductor said it had been handed to him by a passenger.

Mrs. Carrie Claypoole, 4385 Maryland avenue, reported she missed her handbag containing $70 after she boarded an Olive street car upon leaving the Masonic Home.

"Pardon me, I can't find my room," remarked a stranger who bumped into Henry L. Clute, a guest at the Aberdeen Hotel, Sixteenth and Market streets as Clute caught him coming out of Clute's room at the hotel. Clute accepted the apology and the stranger moved on. Clute's watch and chain and a stick pin valued at $75 had been stolen.

While Moses Roberson, clerk at the Madison Hotel, 1831 Market street, was absent from the office for a few minutes a sneak thief opened the cash drawer, took out $60 in cash and a check for $10 but overlooked $115 in currency in another compartment.

Louis Horning, 3806 Marine avenue, returning from a Bavarian picnic at Lin's Grove at 10 p. m., was bumped by three men boarding a Broadway car. When he got inside he found he had been robbed of a purse containing $200 cash and a $100 Liberty bond.

LIEUT. MAYNARD OF U. S. ARMY WINS 1000-MILE AERO DERBY

Pilot Makes Round Trip Between Mineola, N. Y., and Toronto, Canada, in 465 1/4 Minutes.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Lieut. E. W. Maynard of the United States Army air service won the international aero derby between Mineola, N. Y., and Toronto, covering the 1000-mile round trip course in 465 1/4 minutes, according to an official announcement made last night by the contest committee of the American Flying Club. Lieut. H. H. George, whose flying time was 520 3/4 minutes, finished second. Lieut. D. B. Gish was third with a flying time of 524 1/4 minutes. The contest committee said that the winners in the reliability test would be announced next Thursday.

The three aviators finishing first in the aero derby were army pilots, who made the flight in De Havilland four machines equipped with the horsepower Liberty motors. The planes were entered in order to test the reliability of the American-made army machines.

There were 52 airmen entered in the aero race. Of these, 23 finished the round trip and three made second starts. Although several of the planes were wrecked either in landing or getting off, only one pilot was injured.

Coke Advances 75 Cents and Other Products Are Priced Higher. The retail price of coal increased 25 cents a ton today, and the price of coke 75 cents a ton, it was announced by E. J. Wallace, secretary of the Missouri Retail Coal Dealers' Association. Dealers say the increase was due to a great outside demand. Much coal is being shipped, they say.

Wallace predicted an additional increase of 75 cents to $1 a ton if the miners' strike is not quickly settled. Standard coal is now selling at $5 a ton; Mount Olive at $5.50 and Carterville at $6.25. Elkhorn gas coke is $8 and by-product coke $9.75.

2000 NEGROES AND 100 WHITES AT MEETING ON RACE QUESTION

Discussion Held at Austin, Tex., at Instance of Missionary Association.

By the Associated Press. AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 1.—Two thousand negroes and 100 white persons met here last night and discussed the race question which speakers termed acute. Negroes here said it was the beginning of a State-wide movement. State Superintendent of Public Instruction Annie Webb Blanton and former Mayor A. P. Woolbridge were among the speakers.

The meeting, which was held at the invitation of the Executive Board of the St. John's Missionary Negro Baptist Association, with a membership of 20,000 negroes in 11 counties surrounding Austin, was opened by a reading of a resolution adopted by the Executive Board of the association. In part the resolution said:

"We discourage and emphatically declare our opposition to people of the North, who do not understand conditions in the South, interfering without our relationship."

If we are left to ourselves, we will in time adjust all our differences for the good of all concerned.

We tender our services to local and State authorities in allaying this nervousness and uneasiness now existing between the races."

The preamble to the resolution denounced inflammatory negro publications and said in conclusion: "The magazines that urge upon the negro to force him into political positions except where such is mutual upon the part of both races are laying the foundation for race riots and bloodshed in the South."

The envoy had started from Seattle on board the Japanese liner, Fushimi Maru, but the steamer cracked a cylinder head and was forced to go back to Seattle for repairs.

MONUMENT FOR MEN OF 89TH

Memorial Will Be Dedicated by Gen. Wood at Camp Funston.

CAMP FUNSTON, Kan., Sept. 1.—A lasting memorial to men who paid the supreme sacrifice on the battlefields of France, the native stone monument erected at Camp Funston by soldiers who trained here, will be unveiled and dedicated late today by Major-General Leonard Wood, commander of the Eighty-ninth Division during its training period at Camp Funston and now commander of the Central Department of the army. A bronze tablet on the monument bears this inscription: "To the Men Who Trained at Camp Funston for the Great War, 1917-1919."

Construction of the monument was authorized in December, 1915, by Gen. Wood and was begun in Feb., 1919, under the direction of Maj. Sidney H. Negrotto, being completed in May. The material used was native stone, from quarries in the hills of the reservation over which the soldiers took many a hike during training days. The monument, which has a 30-foot base and stands 60 feet high, is of cyclopean structure, and is in the heart of the camp on West Boulevard, about 500 feet from the Golden Belt Highway. It is of random rubble construction, "impressive and dignified," says Major Negrotto.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF CITY WILL OPEN TOMORROW

7000 Children Expected to Be Affected by New Compulsory Education Law.

Public schools will open tomorrow with an expected enrollment of 81,500 pupils in 131 different schools. The enrollment last year on opening day was 81,137. There are 230 teachers and principals on the teaching force.

Night school which formerly opened in October, will open Sept. 15. The night school term will remain at 7 1/2 nights, but there will be a longer vacation at Christmas than 1 previous years.

An added duty of the Board of Education this year is to enforce the compulsory education law which was passed by the last Legislature as part of the children's code. It is estimated that it will be necessary to provide instruction for between 7000 and 8000 more, and that between 20 and 30 additional teachers will be required.

The new law provides that all children between 14 and 16 attend school four hours each week. It also contemplates that pupils between 16 and 18 attend the continuation classes, where vocational training is to be taught, but there is no provision for compelling such attendance. It was stated.

Local department stores are preparing to co-operate with the Board of Education in carrying out the provisions of the new law. At all of the stores the educational quarters where the private educational system of the various stores have been carried on are being enlarged to make room for the new pupils who are employed in the stores. The employees will pursue their studies at the company's time. Teachers will be supplied by the Board of Education to assist. The superintendents of the various stores expressed themselves as heartily in favor of the plan. They were of the opinion it will result in getting more efficient and capable help.

The Board of Education has appropriated $578,425 for books, stationery and supplies for the public schools this year, as compared with $615,575 last year.

All St. Louis County Schools to Open Tomorrow Except in Webster Groves. All St. Louis County grammar schools, with the exception of those at Webster Groves, which begin their 1919-1920 session next week, will be opened tomorrow, according to Superintendent of Instruction R. G. Russell, with a shortage of teachers in at least 12 of the elementary schools.

The shortage will have no serious effect he said, as all of the vacancies will be filled within a week. Supt. Russell anticipates the largest attendance in the history of the grammar schools of St. Louis County.

"TWIN BEDS," VETERAN FARCE, RECEIVES LAUGHING WELCOME

Capacity Crowd at American Theater on Occasion of Season's Opening.

Play-hunger, the inaugural night of the theatrical season, and the fact that the American Theater was left without competition by the postponement of the Shubert-Jefferson's opening, no doubt had much to do with the capacity crowd at the former playhouse last night.

But sure to the remarkable vitality of "Twin Beds," which has now attained the longevity, unique among present-day farces, of its sixth season. Those to whom the play was new kept up the expected stream of laughter, while those who were renewing acquaintance still found fresh relish in its heaped up complications, witty dialogues and clever character drawing, with its humorous moral against unconjugal furniture. All followed with hearty merriment the escapades of the philandering and convivial tenor, the trials of his strong minded spouse, and the mutual passages between young Blanche and Harry Hawkins.

Charming Lois Bolton was seen once more in the part of Mrs. Hawkins, in which she carries to a fine art the way of a woman not only with the irascible sex, but with other women. Others seen before here in the same cast, and taking their parts with veteran finish, are: R. M. d'Angelo as Signor Monti, Virginia Fairfax as Signora Monti, Katherine Mills as the redoubtable maid, Norah; and Thomas H. Manning as Andrew Larkins. Newcomers in the company are: Thomas J. Evans as Harry Hawkins, and Caille Van Vleet as Amanda Davis.

WARRANT DRAWN UP FOR MADISON POLICE CHIEF

Union Man Expected to Swear to Charge of Assault With Intent to Murder.

A warrant for the arrest of Chief of Police Patrick McCambridge of Madison on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder has been drawn up by Assistant State's Attorney J. C. Steele at Granite City, and it was said at Edwardsville this morning that it would be sworn to in the course of the day by Ira C. West, member of the grievance committee at Edwardsville of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America.

The warrant alleges that a bullet wound suffered by Joseph Wedgie of Madison was inflicted by McCambridge when the Police Chief and three patrolmen "shot up a meeting of unorganized employees of the American Car and Foundry Co. of East Madison last Wednesday night. The meeting had been called to unionize the men and was broken up when the policemen began shooting. Wedgie was a bystander.

West said that he would swear to the warrant in the office of Justice of the Peace Sowell at Granite City as soon as he had been advised to do so by the Federal investigator sent to Madison by the United States Department of Labor to inquire into the shooting.

It was said at Edwardsville today that other warrants would follow.

low the one against McCambridge, as those in charge of the investigation believe that he was not alone responsible for the shooting affair. Mayor Ferd Gareche of Madison, who is paymaster for the American Car and Foundry Co., has said that he instructed McCambridge to go to the meeting place because he had heard that trouble was likely to occur there. He insists, however, that he was not responsible for the shooting and has expressed regret that it took place.

West said that he had witnesses to bear out the assertion that at least nine shots were fired into the crowd at the meeting, and that some of the bullets were fired by policemen other than McCambridge.

The shooting was the theme of sermons in Protestant churches at Granite City yesterday and was denounced at a mass meeting of union men in Pastime Hall at Granite City.

ARCHBISHOP GLENNON DISCUSSES RADICALISM

Defeat of Profiteers Will End Unrest, He Says in East St. Louis Address.

One way to stave radical movements against the Government is for the Government to stop profiteering, Archbishop Glennon said in an address yesterday afternoon at the cornerstone laying of the Catholic War Council Community house, Fifth street and St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis.

He also was of the opinion that Christian education would do much to prevent radical political beliefs from spreading. He advised that people stay at home more.

"Some people go from the boarding houses to the sidewalk, from there to the park, then to the movies and then back to bed, and think it is life," he said. "No saintly Christian strength can be gained from an existence like that. Make your city a city of homes."

Dan McGinnis, an attorney, who also spoke at the ceremony, had a different idea about dealing with those who have political beliefs which he feels are dangerous. "Put them in jail," he said. "Those who assault our flag and our country are as guilty of treason now as they were during the war. If they are permitted to continue doing this, our Government will be supplanted by one like that in Russia."

The laying of the cornerstone was preceded by a parade through the downtown streets of several thousand members of Catholic churches. The procession required 20 minutes to pass.

The formal laying of the cornerstone was done by Bishop Althoff of the diocese. He used a golden trowel. Paul Murray was master of ceremonies. The building will cost $250,000.

A number of visitors were present, including the Rev. John M. Cooper of Washington, a member of the National Catholic War Council, and Mrs. Theodore Benoit and Mrs. W. T. Donovan of St. Louis.

CHURCH HOLDS CELEBRATION OF FEAST OF SAINT LOUIS

Silk Banner of Sacred Heart Presented by Descendants of Older French Families.

The annual celebration of the feast of Saint Louis was held yesterday in the Church of St. Louis of France, which is the Old Cathedral, at Third and Walnut streets.

A silk banner of the Sacred Heart was presented to the church on behalf of the descendants of some of the older French families of St. Louis. It was a duplicate of the banner carried by Gen. Charette at the battle of Loigny in the Franco-Prussian war, a Sacred Heart in the center of a French tricolor, fringed with gold. It was stated during the presentation that on July 28, 1918, in a church at the front in the Great War, Gen. Foch consecrated the French army to the Sacred Heart and that the fortunes of the French army thereafter changed and victory dawned. Monsignor J. J. Tanrath accepted the banner for the church.

The Very Rev. Father F. X. McNamany, preaching the sermon of the celebration, treated the life of Saint Louis, crusader and King, as an inspiration for a modern city and its inhabitants.

HIBERNIANS PLEDGE SUPPORT IN EFFORT TO FREE IRELAND

Message to De Valera Promises Financial and Moral Assistance in Movement.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians of St. Louis, in convention at Knights of Columbus Hall yesterday, drafted a message to be sent Provisional President de Valera of the Irish Republic, assuring him of the organization's financial and moral support in every effort to make Ireland free and independent.

Mayor Kiel made an address in which he said that if he had it in his power he would free Ireland at once. He said he hoped the time would soon come when this dream of Irish freedom would be realized. City Counselor Daues spoke in a similar strain.

The following officers were elected: John J. Downey, St. Joseph, president; Richard J. Conway, St. Louis, vice president; Peter J. McCormack, St. Louis, secretary, and John J. Sullivan, Kansas City, treasurer.

SALOON MAN STABBED TWICE BY CUSTOMER

Louis Burnis Identifies One of Two Ordered From His Place as Assailant.

Louis Burnis, 44 years old, proprietor of a saloon at 2261 Biddle street, known as the "Monkey Cage," and residing at 8129 Fair avenue, was stabbed twice in the abdomen and seriously wounded at midnight Saturday by one of two men whom he had ordered from the saloon. The second man in the fight fired five shots at Burnis from Burnis' own revolver, but none of the bullets took effect.

Burnis was taken to the city hospital and today was reported in a critical condition there.

Policemen arrested William Bruley, 25, a horse-shoer, 1023 North Twenty-second street. At the hospital he was identified by Burnis as one of the assailants, his he denied. He said he was in the saloon when the argument started, but ran out when weapons were displayed.

Burnis told policemen the men who assaulted him had been in the saloon a half hour before the stabbing. They started an argument at that time and he ordered them out. When they returned, he said, one of them took a position at the end of the bar and started to renew the argument. As he ordered them out again, he said, the one at the end of the bar remarked: "You sent two men to the struce, but you'll send no more," and started towards Burnis. The latter got his revolver from behind the bar and started towards the speakers. At the end of the bar, he said, the two seized him. While one was struggling for the revolver, he said the other stabbed him. As he was wounded he released his hold on the revolver and the first man fired the shots at him.

Burnis was instrumental in sending Leo Daley and Patrick Allen to the penitentiary in 1916 after an attempted holdup in the saloon. These two have served their time and are at liberty.

Neither one of the two was in the saloon at the time of the stabbing, Burnis said.

A fried fish intended for John Murray, a prisoner at the city workhouse, was found to be the hiding place for a quantity of opium by guards yesterday when Clifton R. Bostic, a negro, 2141 Walnut street, attempted to pass a basket of food to the prisoner.

Bostic was arrested and held for the Federal authorities. He said he had been given the food to take to the workhouse by a white man who had paid him for the trip.

GIRL AND EMPLOYER FOUND DEAD

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Finding yesterday of a diary kept by Miss Marie Meyers, a stenographer, whose body and that of her employer, Charles W. Richards, vice president of a manufacturing concern, were discovered in her apartment late Saturday night, both shot to death, indicated that for a year she had nourished a feeling of jealousy. The diary, which named several other women, showed the stenographer had kept Richards under a sort of surveillance for more than a year, and the police believe she had planned the double tragedy nearly that long ago. Richards was married.

GOOD MOVIE BILLS
AT LOCAL HOUSES

"The Miracle Man" and "Checkers" Have Unusual Drawing Powers.

"The Miracle Man," which in its book form made fame for Frank L. Packard and in its stage form made a fortune for George M. Cohan, came to the New Grand Central screen yesterday for an indefinite stay and justified many of the glowing promises of the advance notices.

This film has a notable cast, including Betty Compton, Thomas Meighan, Lon Chaney, Elinor Fair and Joseph J. Dowling. It is the story of a gang of New York crooks who plan to make money by exploiting a deaf and dumb "healer" who is attracting the halt and the lame to a little country town. With the aid of The Frog, a contortionist beggar, they stage a fake miracle, but to their amazement a crippled boy and an invalid girl are actually cured.

These real miracles and their association with the healer gradually change the natures of the crooks and the story of their complete regeneration is finely told.

Clara Kimball Young in "The Better Wife" has the leading place on the Pershing bill this week. A shorter but very effective feature is a picturization of Fannie Hurst's clever sketch, "The Petal on the Current," with Mary MacLaren as the heroine.

A large part of the audience at the Liberty Theater yesterday afternoon jumped to its feet and yelled when Bert Barlow galloped home on Remorse a nose ahead of the favorite in the derby, as a smashing climax in the great derby scene of Henry Blossom's "Checkers." That demonstration alone was a convincing testimonial of the favor with which the screen version of the popular stage play was received, but it was not the only evidence of approval shown by the crowd which filled the Fox theater.

When "Checkers" rescued Pert, the daughter of the leader of a gang that was copying his downfall, from a dive in underground Chinatown, the audience followed his adventure with enthusiasm unequalled in the spirit that used to be displayed in the old days of the Halvins Theater "Blood-and-the-Blood" drama.

Other scenes shown on the screen in a most natural way, a manner that could not even be dreamed of on the speaking stage, included a railroad wreck and a seaplane crash. There also was a gambling scene which, for realism, scored a pronounced hit.

An unusually clever satire on superstitions which pester some feminine minds in "Nobody Home," with Dorothy Clah as the hoodoo star, which opened at the West End Lyric and Lyric Skydome yesterday. Another notable feature of the program is the appearance of Miss Nell Tracy of St. Louis, in the second of her moving picture ventures under the tutelage of Mrs. Sidney Drew. "A Sisterly Scheme" is the title of her present offering.

Wallace Reid, in "The Love Burglar," is a prime attraction at the Kings and the Mozart Airdome. On the bill also is "A Sisterly Scheme," with Nell Tracy.

The featured attraction, opening the week at the Royal yesterday, was Marion Davies in "The Dark Star."

The New Grand-Florian Theater opens today with Joseph Medill Patterson's "A Little Brother of the Rich" as the leading attraction.

KIRKWOOD AGAINST ZONE FARES
Citizens Going to Jefferson City on Special Pullman to Protest.
Citizens of Kirkwood have chartered a Pullman sleeper to go to Jefferson City tonight to appear at 10 a. m. tomorrow before the Public Service Commission to protest against the proposal for a zone system of street car fares in St. Louis County.

The proposal is for a 10-cent fare to Maplewood, 20 cents to a zone the extremity of which is Webster Groves, and 30 cents for a zone the extremity of which is Kirkwood and whose citizens declare that such a rate would depopulate the town. By a purchase of tokens, the fare to Kirkwood would be 22½ cents, compared with 11 cents, the present rate. The protesters do not oppose a reasonable fare increase, but demand that the zone system be not used. They declare that a flat rate should be charged as far distant as Mernace Highlands. Each of those who will go to Jefferson City will pay his own expenses.

TRIES TO SELL STOLEN AUTO

Man Runs Out of Motor Company
When Conversation Is Prolonged.
An automobile stolen Saturday from in front of 102 North Seventh street, the property of C. L. Haenni, 2320 Tower Grove avenue, was recovered by policemen at 2 p. m. yesterday when a stranger drove into the Knight Motor and Cycle Co., 2327 Locust street, and offered the car for sale for $150.

He said he had driven from Kansas City and was tired of "touring" and wanted to dispose of the machine. Employees of the company engaged him in conversation while others telephoned for detectives. The stranger became suspicious and ran out of the place and escaped before the policemen arrived. The machine was taken to police headquarters and later turned over to Haenni.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely pleasing news, always be drastically independent, never be afraid to attack wrong whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

JOSEPH PULITZER.
 April 10, 1907.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

To St. Louis Marines.

May I ask that you print the following in the columns of your worthy paper: To all returned Marines enlisted at St. Louis during 1917-1918 under Capt. F. E. Turin and those who served with him at Paris Island, South Carolina. Greetings.

You have returned to your home and loved ones and will resume life as a civilian where you left off when you joined the ranks of the "Devil Dogs."

It gave me great pleasure to know that you had returned. Many of you gave me the opportunity to accept you for enlistment in the Marines, and it was with a keen sense of pride that I read of your achievements which will live forever on history's brightest page. The great record you made while in France kept me on the alert to do my best with a longing to be with you, shoulder to shoulder, fighting the great battle for democracy.

Greetings, again, comrades, and in conclusion permit me to request that you pay particular attention to the American Legion, which now numbers approximately 1,000,000 members. Quoted in Roosevelt, Post No. 1, is an excellent post, which I request you to join.

We have stuck together through the war. "Let's stick together in peace." The American Legion has stood together with the soldier, sailor and marine, and we stand not as Captains, Sergeants and privates, but as COMRADES. I will be pleased to endorse your applications for membership. Join in the national convention and lend your support to your comrades, soldiers, sailors and marines.

You can communicate with me at the St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau, 507 Commercial Building. Cordially, FRANCIS E. TURIN, Captain U. S. Marine Corps Reserve.

A Thankful Mother.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 Please let me thank you a thousand times and wish you all the success in the world that you can have for the return of my son, and also many thanks and good wishes to the gentleman that put him on the street car that brought him home, and also the roomer, Mr. Green, that woke me up when he found him sitting on the front steps. Good luck to everybody that had anything to do with his return. I am the poor boy's mother.
 MRS. STELLA BISK.
 919 Salisbury street.

The Double Transfer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 Mr. Wells, receiver for the U. R. Co., states that the double transfer is much abused and is the source of much loss of revenue.

The former president and general manager of the U. R. Co. adopted the double transfer system so that a person coming from southwest and going west, north-west, or vice versa, should be sent over the nearest cross line so that a person did not have to ride all the way downtown, the only place where east and west going cars meet, for a transfer. This system was adopted for the benefit of the street car company, so that people having no business downtown would not occupy the overcrowded cars in the congested district. This being a saving for the company to use less cars and a saving of time for the public. The charter of the U. R. Co. specifies that transport shall be given a passenger from any one part of the city to another for a 5-cent fare. The fare question having already been violated, is it Mr. Wells' intention to also violate the charter? Mr. Wells intends to know that even if a person ride all the way downtown, there are several lines that do not connect and can therefore not issue transfers. It seems, therefore, reasonable that Mr. Wells intends to squeeze another fare out of the thousands who can not make use of a single transfer. NELS GRANT, 7008 Hancock av.

For Government Ownership.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
 I dread to think what it would be like if those railroads were in the hands of their owners. They would, no doubt, either raise their rates and give the parlor Pullman service to raise prices all along the line (as a step in the scientific adjustment) or they would cut wages and have a real Bolshevik holiday. I think those railroads see something like this and are trying to get the Government to buy the roads and avoid it. And I am glad of it. We can trust the Government, but we cannot trust the big owners of this country, who have too often shown their willingness to raise prices and cut wages and doctor their books.

We can stand considerable from the "big five," the shoe people and others like them, but we all know very well that the railroads must be kept going. Since their workers are organized into one unit and can put us in such danger, they should be owned by the Government. If, after Government ownership, any Bolshevik should creep in among them and cause them to make unjust demands, we would just simply have to take stern measures to keep the roads running and protect our lives. We don't have to take any foolishness from either capital or labor in this land of the free.

DEMOCRACY.

LABOR'S DAY OF ACCOUNTABILITY.

Labor comes to its own holiday this year with its need for sound, capable, far-seeing leadership emphasized as perhaps it has not been in the past.

Before it are opening years when prudence and wisdom in its collective policies may win for it gains of a sort now unlooked for; when lack of them may bring it to great and unnecessary misfortunes.

Labor would have been untrue to itself had it not recognized its opportunity in the unprecedented state of the world's affairs during the past few years. It has made the most of that opportunity. Its right to have its claims given preponderating weight in determining the conditions under which it shall toll and especially its just share of the rewards of its tolling has been conceded by some unwillingly, by some with gladness; but it is now conceded by a greater number than ever before in history.

Many things altered by the heavy impress of war will resume their former status as the approach to the normal continues. Among metamorphoses which have the most certain promise of permanence is the metamorphosis of labor in the sphere of thought, in the domain of affairs, at the pay window.

From labor's new and happy position there will be no turning back—unless labor itself shall cause a turning back.

The days of struggle and slow advance had their problems of difficulty, but they were days that tended to caution, to close unity, to devoted effort, to practical policies. The days of success—and in the record of successes where is there one more brilliant than that achieved by labor in the past five years, indeed, in the past 12 months—have brought new and different problems. With the high tide of success divided counsel, disunion, presumptuousness in plans, rashness in action may come. Already some labor leaders think that because the world has moved very rapidly in the recent past it must move very rapidly in the immediate future.

For labor to enrage precipitately in a misguided movement on an extensive scale during the next few months and fall would be to give a signal to the forces of reaction. Powerful forces of reactionary quality are waiting impatiently for the issue which just such a misguided movement would raise. They hope by crushing labor in one important battle to check its victorious course and even compel it to surrender some of the ground won in prior triumphs.

This is a time when labor must not blunder. One false step now might halt advance during many coming years.

In prosperity, when even greater wisdom is needed, can labor be as wise as it was in adversity? Judicious conservatism may achieve as much under the conditions of the future as alert aggressiveness under the conditions of the past. Leaders who would risk the substance to grasp at the shadow must be put down. An survey of the wonders wrought by peaceful adjustment, is it not time to relegate the strike to the limbo to which the duello and tribal feud have already been relegated and to which we hope war will soon be relegated?

"Progress—not for the few, but for all," said Mr. Gompers in his Post-Dispatch Labor day message. It is a splendid toast for any Labor day; it has a special meaning for this Labor day.

Labor, triumphant, prosperous, exulting, can afford to be generous in interpreting it. The sentiment it expresses would have excluded movements planned for recent days by some labor bodies, which may be planned for coming days. The numbers of labor are few compared with the numbers of the many—the whole public. Advantages sought at the expense of others, which impose without just cause intolerable hardship and loss on the many, carry with them the seeds of coming disaster. With its day of greater opportunities labor has come to a solemn day of an accountability such as it has never known. Having attained to the power of a giant, labor must use it with the wisdom of a sage, the magnanimity of a lover of his fellow man.

It may be a dangerous game the profiteers are playing, but it is small comfort to the public to be told it is being shaved by unsafety-raisers.

THE SENATE AND LUDENDORFF'S MEMOIRS.

Among the queerest of many bizarre ideas coming from the Senate is that, while preparations are being made to print Gen. Ludendorff's "Own Story" in a number of Entente and other countries, the work should be suppressed in the United States. Senator Chamberlain fears that it may "stirly instill in the American people" German viewpoints as to the war.

Mr. Chamberlain either has read the book or he has not. If he has read it himself or any part of it, why should he deny others the right to read it? Is the average American citizen so weak-minded that he must be refused access to materials which his servants, Senators and other officials, examine with impunity? If Mr. Chamberlain has not read it, how can he speak with any confidence of its effect?

One of history's great lessons on the advantages of full liberty in speaking and writing is found in German propaganda in this country from 1914 to 1917—a lesson we might have held more firmly in mind after we got into the war. If attempts had been made to suppress this propaganda, they could have had only partial success and an inevitable result would have been to inspire sympathy and render the public mind more or less receptive to the purpose aimed at. But the propaganda was allowed full swing. The outcome was that America formed a judgment adverse to Germany on Germany's own statement of its case.

Gen. Ludendorff's memoirs are exactly what they purport to be—the narrative of one of the important German army chiefs. It will present ex-parte German viewpoints, of course, but no Senator should be gnawed with fatherly anxiety over America on that account. America is tolerably immune to German viewpoints.

The narrative includes intensely interesting information on matters which heretofore have been a sealed book—events in the German army and the ideas and plans of the high command. It is one of the important contributions to the history of the great war.

SELLING GOVERNMENT-BUILT SHIPS.

When the Lake Gilboa, built by the United States Shipping Board at a Great Lakes yard, arrived at Montreal, her American flag was hauled down and a British flag hoisted. Her American crew was discharged and a British crew substituted. For she had been sold to a British navigation company. She was paid for at the rate of $90 a ton, but will prove a splendid investment. It is asserted that the freight charge on her first cargo will amount to $30 a ton.

Isn't a piece of floating property which, with expense of operation deducted, will practically pay for itself on its first round trip a pretty good piece of property for Uncle Sam to keep, especially when it can serve the double purpose of earning handsome dividends and helping to extend Uncle Sam's new trade in new regions?

POLICE WORK—NOT INVASION.

From the New York World.

No surprise need be felt at the prompt return of our cavalry from Mexico by any one who kept in mind the purpose of its dash. That purpose was solely to capture, punish or disperse the brigand band that had held two American aviators for ransom. How completely that purpose was accomplished it is hard to say; some, at least, of the bandits, and possibly their leader, will never again trouble the frontier.

The indirect fruits of the swift campaign are more easily weighed. The Carranza administration has received a sharp reminder that the patience of the United States has limits; and to the extent that Carranza forces are themselves patrolling the frontier there is the less necessity for us to do so. For against the armed forces of the two republics must make common cause until the nuisance is abated.

However disagreeable the fact may be to the claimants of Mexican mine and ranch concessions, our Government never had the slightest idea of an invasion of Mexico, and it neglected no means of enforcing the fact plain to the Carranza Government. What Col. Langhorne undertook was a task for which there are precedents in plenty, and even the express authority of treaty provisions. It was a police operation.

FIVE FARMERS TELL FOOD FACTS.

From the New York World.

FIVE representatives of State farm bureaus who went to Washington to confer with President Wilson ate a plain dinner in a "modest hotel." When they got the bill of $11 they figured that the producer of the food, the farmer, had received 82 cents of the $11, considerably less than the tip the waiter no doubt expected.

The five farmers are right in saying that cutting the farmer's share in half would save less than 4 per cent of the bill. They are right in the view that applying the "first-aid remedy" of food embargoes at home "to create and foster anarchy and revolution abroad should not be the policy of the United States." Strange "policy," indeed, to starve in 1919 our customers of 1920 and the years to come!

This Washington dinner illustrates once more what the World has long contended—that the high cost of living is not the fault, or is the fault in but slight extent, of the price at the farm, the orchard and the truck patch.

The man who dines at a "first-class" hotel knows that he pays more for the lights, the orchestra, the location, the surroundings, than for his food. Far more important is it that the poor man, whether he eats at home or in the cheapest restaurant, cannot escape the cost of a distribution system greedy, wasteful and inefficient.

LOVE'S PROMISES.

Hush! The ears of Heaven listen. Unused to voice as sweet as yours. The stars, that quiver and glisten, Around which far-born beauty stirs, They are waiting silence hung.

A rich masterpiece of love. And the drenched moon—he has heard sung. Ev'ry beautiful song and mine.

Hush, dearest! Sing not yet of love. Or all men's hearts will throbb and die. So long they have not dreamed above. And earth has scarcely dared to try. Let them know peace with lives unpledged.

Singing their little songs to you, If you once sang you would be shrived. From their pale souls by love anew.

Hush, sweetheart! Or a mocking-bird Will hear you—imitate—and death Too soon will hear him chirp the word. Not beautiful minus your breath.

"Love" for a bird—is run and steal. New passions from the sun or stream. A pulse of joy—a bird-folk dream.

Say but to me—and maybe God Will let me live beyond all men. Figuring it untold aloud. Ev'n though you whisper it again. Hush, sweet! Not now when moon-light hands Weave rosy glories thru' your hair— And starshine in your eyes commands! Come in the dark and say it there! ALAN HERBERT.

GOT THE BROWNS MIXED.

From the Edinburgh Scotsman.

There were two Browns in the village, both fishermen. One lost his wife and the other lost his boat at about the same time.

The vicar's wife called, as she supposed, on the widower, but really upon the Brown whose boat had gone down. "I am sorry to hear of your great loss," she said.

"Oh, it ain't much matter," was the philosophical reply; "she wasn't up to much."

"Indeed!" said the surprised lady. "Yes," continued Brown, "she was a rickety old thing. I offered her to my mate, but he wouldn't have her. I've had my eye on another for some time."

And then the outraged woman fled.

SOME CHEESE.

The T. N. Simon Cheese Co., incorporated of Appleton, Wis., has made a cheese that weighs 31.064 pounds. It is 8 feet high and 10½ feet thick, with a circumference of about 33 feet. It represents the cheese-making powers of 357,569 pounds of milk and it contains 800 pounds of salt and 1215 ounces of rennet. Its milk came from 12,000 cows on 1800 farms; the curd was made by 73 cheese makers and helpers and the final product is valued at $16,000.

The cheese was made to be exhibited at the national dairy show, Oct. 6 to 12, inclusive, 1919. The judges pronounced the quality of the cheese to be perfect and better than the largest cheese made before—American Grocer.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND IN SIAM.

The elephants are our chief standby in Siam and without them teak could not be worked, as it grows in such inaccessible places that no hauling machine could be brought near the trees, says a writer in Asia. Elephants can climb like cats. It is marvelous to see them pick their way up and down steep slopes, but sometimes they lose their foothold. One of our elephants fell down a steep river bank last year, hit her head against a rock and broke her neck.

The work of the elephants consists in climbing up to the fallen trees and pushing or rolling them down hill to a spot where it is level enough for dragging chains to be attached.

Then they drag the logs down to the nearest floating creek, often 10 or seven miles away. An elephant can handle from 50 to 70 logs per season, which lasts from about the first of June till the end of February. Then it becomes too hot for them to work and they go into rest camps until the next rains.

The elephants do their best work in floating streams, working the timber with the current, releasing logs from jams and rolling the stranded logs back into the water. The elephant drivers have a special "elephant" language which the animals understand—a special vocabulary with such terms as "push sideways," "roll," "pull out," "stop," "lift your chains."

It is very interesting and exciting to watch the elephants at work in high water. They are magnificent swimmers. When they swim from bank to bank, herding the logs that require their special attention, you see nothing of them except the tips of their trunks through which they breathe, and the mahouts, or drivers, who are generally in water up to their waists. If a big stack of jam breaks suddenly where elephants are working, they know the danger of being overtaken.

They trumpet and clear off to either bank or swim downstream as fast as they can go. I once saw an elephant working at the head of a jam slip off a rock into deep water and get swept under the stack. We all believed that he was a goner, but every now and then we were surprised to see his trunk come up through the logs, suck in a long breath and disappear. The trunk would reappear each time further downstream. He finally emerged at the foot of the jam, very much blown, but otherwise none the worse for his accident. But he would not go near a pile of timber in high water for a year afterward. This particular work is called "hounding."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Harden Sees Danger of Reaction in Germany in Country's Coal Shortage

Recruits Lured Under Slogan, "We Have Not Been Conquered"—Winter Without Heat and Light Would Be Fatal, He Says.

By Maximilian Harden.

(Copyright, 1919, by the Press Pub. Co. (N. Y. World).)

BERLIN, Sunday, Aug. 31.—Over Germany's life, become sunless, new storm clouds are gathering. The basic raw material which, in our climate, is almost more indispensable than grain, the heat, power and light dispensing coal, grows scarcer from moon to moon. The coal miner, for years badly fed and tired and sullen after the cruel disappointment of the war, no longer performs what he formerly did.

In German shipyards it has been ascertained that during the same period of time in which formerly 430 rivets were driven only 25 are driven now. But work underground is harder; and the coal miner feels in himself more than does the factory worker the power of bringing to a standstill all wheels, all sources of light, heat, motive power, and is even more accessible to the siren call warning him against further "plugging himself for the profit of the producers and their stockholders."

The weakened condition of the body and the rebelliously toned soul together lower working efficiency. The strikes, following one another in close succession, have prevented the accumulation of coal supplies. Already the gas (dear and bad) is only to be had within closely limited hours.

The limitation and reduction of railroad traffic are already officially announced, and in the east of Prussia already in many a town there are no street cars any more. The Saar basin is lacking and the partners in the peace treaty can demand coal supplies. On the lower Rhine and in Westphalia the coal production can be increased, but the necessary prior condition would be that the miner should have a very considerable participation in the profits of the mines and that decent dwellings are built for the new incoming army of miners.

Value of Cheerful Home. The worker who has a good home and is interested in the flourishing of the enterprise by reason of having a part of the profits flow to him, as to the owner of the capital, those who lend it, will take a greater joy in his work and be less easily persuaded into striking than the homeless worker.

But houses for hundreds of thousands, particularly in our raw material shortage, cannot be stamped out of the earth; nor is it easier to break the selfishness which stubbornly refuses participation in the profits and a look into the operations of the business connected therewith.

What of Germany's Future? What will Germany's political face look like when again the fall traffic hitches, great industries are forced to come to a standstill and in winter heat and light are limited to a minimum? The man placed on small fat rations, without the necessary calories, has no power of resistance against cold. In the dark streets need breeds crime.

Not everyone knows that a strong party plus its hopes to the psychological effects of such a state of affairs, and that out of coal shortage comes a demand to be for an armistice quick, at once, today, and Marshal Hindenburg himself gave the order to accept Foch's hard conditions.

One powerful attempt at rabid Socialism, communism and every other non-proletarianized rally round the black-red-and-white flag, and Germany's last remaining strength will ebb away in civil war, and the hope of compensation will vanish from Germany's enemies.

When they could go any further, when, between Slippes and Meuse, Americans and French broke deep into the German front, when the figures of our losses in men and guns had swollen to unbearable proportions and the demand for an armistice, a Sedan of the million army was to be feared, then did these Generals, these gods of Great Headquarters, storm the Berlin Government with the demand to be for an armistice quick, at once, today, and Marshal Hindenburg himself gave the order to accept Foch's hard conditions.

One powerful attempt at rabid Socialism, communism and every other non-proletarianized rally round the black-red-and-white flag, and Germany's last remaining strength will ebb away in civil war, and the hope of compensation will vanish from Germany's enemies.

Were Germany already admitted into the league of nations, then the principal Powers might, and ought, as quickly as any way possible, agree on an impartial, truthful and authentic representation of the cost of the war, which would place beyond and above all doubt that Germany is now feeling the consequences of military defeat, military defeat, military errors and sins, and not the after-effects of an unjust political change; and which, in a gigantic edition, at cheapest prices, would be distributed into the smallest village hut, into the darkest parsonage.

Exposed to New Misfortune. To Hoover's grand-scale plan to relieve Europe's coal shortage there could then be allied another plan whose goal would be to bring light and heat to the soul, to the intellect, and not the after-effects of an unjust political change; and which, in a gigantic edition, at cheapest prices, would be distributed into the smallest village hut, into the darkest parsonage.

Beckons to Disaffection. To on these still often hear the anarchistic-militaristic party beckons and promises them the return of the status quo ante bellum, quiet and order, obedience by the crowd and well-to-do for those born to property rights.

Because the product of our "revolution" still lacks all momentum of soul, all flame-throwing pathos, because even unto today it has offered almost nothing to the spirit, nor opened up any prospect of happiness-bringing light, those who praise the old order have an easy time of it.

Calling for Recruits. The same people, classes, parties, who during the November storm crawled into mouse holes now wax fresh in rawest abusive rhetoric against those who brought about and favored the new era. What, they ask, has the much-vaunted democracy, yea, or even Socialism, profited you?

That is what is printed in a thousand newspapers, in a hundred thousand pamphlets, often are distributed by uniformed officers on the public streets.

Unwilling to Admit Defeat. "We have not been beaten, conquered; we have only been lamed and forced to lay down our arms by the cowardly lack of courage of the Social Democrats, the slackers, Bolsheviks, and the country misguided by Jews at home and abroad."

Even out of the mouths of radical workers these words are heard. "We've really never been beaten." And because this slogan proved serviceable its proclamation became louder month after month. In the writings of the highest officer under Ludendorff one reads that the German army in September, 1918, was only "the length of a nose" from victory.

The Well-Dressed Woman of Smart Society—What She Wears, the Time and the Place.

By Margaret Wade.

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEWPORT, Sept. 1. HAVING resigned itself to the great disappointment of not having a visit from the Prince of Wales on whose coming more than one American hostess planned her summer, Newport is making the most of the presence of the Duke and Duchess of Roxburgh, the Countess Grand and Lady Lowther to bring an otherwise dull season to a brilliant close.

These young matrons all identified with Newport from childhood are naturally the recipients of many attentions from their relatives and friends, but failing the Prince, no one is giving a ball, or even a garden party, which is a considerable pity. As one famous hostess puts it this is no time to advertise one's hospitality.

To the newly arrived Washington, whether the temporary possessor of a villa on Bellevue avenue, or a short term patron at one of the two hotels recognized by the elect, Newport is extremely home-like in its social atmosphere. The casual observer describes as the crowned heads of New York's Four Hundred taking the place of the capital's official hostesses.

An exception in this average game may be made in favor of Miss Maude Wetmore, daughter of the former Senator from Rhode Island, some years ago one of America's most famous amateurs. The crack player of this season is Lady Lowther, the former Miss Eleanor Breese, and Mrs. Vincent Astor, who play regularly in white skirts and blouses, Lady Lowther wearing the softest of straw hats, and her adopted daughter with Mrs. Astor wearing a rough straw sailor.

JUST across the way from the Casino stands "Stone Villa," occupied by the former Ambassador to Russia, M. George Bakmeteff and his popular American wife. The former representative of the late czar and Mrs. Bakmeteff are taking no part in the social life of Newport, but are constantly surrounded by a distinguished circle of friends. Mrs. Bakmeteff, taking her half-hour walk on the avenue before luncheon and French breakfast, is a deep man front, when the figure of a man in a military uniform is seen in the distance, she is then this General, of Great Headquarters, Berlin Government with her to be for an armistice.

If, as all the world has been led to believe, this city is ever the undisputed territory of the New York millionaire, with charms unknown to the pleasure seekers of the polite world not located on the banks of the Hudson, the Newport of the future destined to recruit the subscribers and stockholders of its time-honored institutions from the banks of the Potomac, the Delaware and the Ohio. Some commentators on the number of "for sale" or "for rent" signs that tell a story all their own are inclined to believe that if the standards of living established by the New York leasars of 20 years ago are to continue, the invitation to "come in" will have to extend all the way to the Pacific Coast. For to enjoy Newport's advantages one must be invited. There is no breaking in at this resort, which its oldest patrons still describe as a "watering place."

A constantly growing colony of national interests includes the officers of the navy on duty here, and their families, the foremost in the public mind being Admiral William S. Sims, late in command of the American fleet abroad, and his clever wife, the famous Miss Anne Hitchcock of St. Louis and Washington.

MRS. SIMS and her sister, Miss Margaret Hitchcock, were interesting figures at one of the small teas of last week, the former in a French blue voile with pin-head embroidery in white, a short emblem of white organdie and a small Valenciennes lace finished the top of the square-cut, semi-flowing tunic which fell open from the waistline over a rather narrow but not short skirt. A round hat of blue straw with its crown wreathed in a French blue veil of the same topped this becoming gown.

Miss Hitchcock, who has only recently returned from a prolonged residence in Europe, wore a very smart pink chiffon gown, with skirt held in deep broad pleats from waist to hem, but with slight drapery, evidently an extension of the modish undies, falling in irregular lines to the hips. Her hat was the new mushroom of black with large velvet flowers about the base of the velvet crown.

Mrs. Gibson Fahnstock, who is having aside her mourning, wore a gown of gray chiffon, showing unmistakable signs of its Paris maker. Her skirt came to the ankles, also showed considerable width at the hem, while the open tunic to the knees was hemstitched at a depth of nine or 10 inches, with delicate inscriptions of embroidery at short intervals above and below the line.

Woman Portrait Painter Giving Soldiers New Faces Here in St. Louis

Miss Gilmer Working on a Sketch of a Soldier.

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

HAVE you always been a little dissatisfied with the shape of your nose? Then, go to war for Uncle Sam, get it shot off, let his surgeons supply you with a new nose and have it made to your liking. Try the same process, if your chin isn't all that is should be or the size of your mouth does not please you, you can have these features remodeled with about the same certainty that you can tear down a part of your house and have it rebuilt to your satisfaction.

An exhibition of casts, photographs and drawings of facial cases in various stages of progress, now hung up on the walls of the Red Cross recreation pavilion at Jefferson Barracks, reveals these marvelous facts. The portraits are of casts treated by the maxillo facial unit. This unit, officered by Col. Vilroy P. Blair of St. Louis, Col. McGee of Denver and Maj. F. J. Tainter of St. Charles, who were with the Expeditionary Forces in overseas hospitals, is one of the three centers in the United States to which facial wounds were assigned following the war.

At first there were about 80 patients at this hospital. So well has the work progressed that about half the number have been discharged or turned over to the army. The exhibition is expected to remain in cases will be so far restored that the hospital may be closed by October.

The exhibition is especially fascinating in that you can trace by these vital records kept in the three mediums of photography, plaster and art the progress of each case. For it is an actual fact that the results of its always gratifying result to date. These records are to be sent to Washington, finally to the War Department where they will be useful, for example, to the army has been so skillfully patched up he will have no other means of proving the grievous wounds he suffered and his eligibility to a pension. For it is an actual fact that in some cases the complete restoration of a face to all appearances as well as for all practical purposes is an improvement upon the original. The aesthetic improvement may be not a little due to the presence of an artist on the staff of the facial reconstructionists, wielding a pencil with the same quickness and accuracy as the surgeon wields his scalpel, recording each stroke for further reference and the record of the case. A photographer also serves to the greatest advantage in the reconstruction of the surgeon's diagram of the next steps to be taken. Such work requires a rare combination of talents, facility with a pencil attained through long practice and training in sketching from the living model, together with a knowledge of anatomy, interior and exterior, and of physiology. Going still further in the reconstruction plans, the artist is expected to draw or model each face as it should look when restored to perfect symmetry as a guide for the surgeon to attain to. Here's where your artist's inclination to idealize may come into play and lead the surgeon to improve upon the original.

The person of such versatility, as may well be expected, is in this case a woman, Miss Mary Ridgeway Gilmer.

Miss Gilmer was originally a portrait painter, having devoted six years to the study of her art in the greatest art schools. She is originally also a Virginian, a Colonial Dame and all that, and has portraits hanging in the Capital at Richmond. A practical turn of mind led her away from portrait painting which belongs to the realm of luxury, into commercial art. Finding a field still less crowded in medical drawing, she specialized in this branch. And now she reveals in the real service and usefulness to which her talents may be applied.

Miss Gilmer is employed by the Surgeon-General of the Army, but the morale for which the Red Cross officers, Arthur Mudd and Gratz Scott, field director, are largely responsible, is very high at this hospital. It is not contended that in acquiring these new and perfected features you do not undergo pain. Most of the cases require many, many operations. Most of us would prefer to work for a while, but they are, to undergoing the pain these soldiers do.

The Business of Home Making

The Child's School Lunch Box.

By MRS. CHRISTINE FREDERICK,
Author, "Household Engineering."

NOW that the school bell has rung, and little Johnnie and Susie are trudging each morning to their lessons, we may think that the whole school problem is off our hands, and that we can settle back comfortably to our other winter responsibilities. But what are the children eating at noon? Before we have answered that, we cannot calmly sit by and turn our attention elsewhere.

The children must have a good, substantial noon meal. Perhaps they come home at noon, in which case the mother will be able to provide a meal. It is an actual fact that the whole school problem is off our hands, and that we can settle back comfortably to our other winter responsibilities. But what are the children eating at noon? Before we have answered that, we cannot calmly sit by and turn our attention elsewhere.

If the child cannot come home, and if the school does not supply a warm lunch at cost, then the mother herself has a responsibility in the school lunch box she prepares. There should be a protein or muscle food in the box, such as meat, fish, or eggs. There is dried salmon and other dried winter fish, which also make acceptable changes.

Next come the starches. Good home-made brown or rye bread as sandwiches will give strength and nourishment. Home-made bread of all kinds, nut and raisin and wheat best worth following in matters of dress, will wear no sleeves in dinner gowns, but on any public occasion will make no such display of arms or shoulders as one may see in any holiday crowd from New York to San Francisco.

Save all small glass jars. One good use for them is to keep tacks, screws and small nails in. It will save time when looking for a particular kind.

But to get back to the exhibition. It is open to the public and before it is removed to Washington, it should be seen by all who doubt that Uncle Sam is doing everything scientifically possible to restore his maimed soldiers to full capacity. I would like to have brought some of the seemingly miraculous achievements to your view in the Post-Dispatch, but Col. Freeman, commandant of the general hospital, said, out of consideration for the feelings of individual men disgraced in fighting for us, this should not be done. He may be right. There may be a horror of the thing from which possible sensitiveness should be shielded. But there in the midst of the kindly surgeons and Red Cross workers, there was no evidence of sensitiveness on the part of the "cases" who stood about watching the exhibition being assembled. On the contrary, each betrayed something akin to pride when the full record of his case was on display. There were men there whose faces were a network of scars in varying degrees of visibility. The doctors said eventual removal of the scars is the easiest thing they do now. The only objections to the exhibition were on the part of those whose cases were not far enough advanced to warrant their exhibition. A man with an unduly large, but not unsightly nose remarked positively: "Now if my nose had just had time to shrink a little more. It's going to be all right when it has shrunk."

There was further evidence that the morale for which the Red Cross officers, Arthur Mudd and Gratz Scott, field director, are largely responsible, is very high at this hospital. It is not contended that in acquiring these new and perfected features you do not undergo pain. Most of the cases require many, many operations. Most of us would prefer to work for a while, but they are, to undergoing the pain these soldiers do.

THE SANDMAN STORY FOR TONIGHT

By MRS. F. A. WALKER.

The Three Ogres and the Pearl—Part I.

ONCE upon a time there was a witch who had three sons who were Ogres, and each son asked the witch for a princess for his wife. The old witch, who loved her sons dearly, wanted to make all three happy, but as there was but one Princess in the land she knew this was impossible, so she called all three sons to her and told them that the one who should find the big pearl which was hidden in the river near the castle should have her for his wife.

The King's daughter had one day lost this beautiful pearl while bathing, and the King had sent out word to all his nobles to find it. The one who should find the pearl he would give a barrel of gold.

The witch thought if she could get both of her sons in the King's castle she could throw a spell over the Princess that would make her love her ugly son.

So all three of the Ogres went to the river to swim and look for the pearl, but as all three wanted the Princess for a wife they began to quarrel over which should have her that they did not do much besides.

One of the sons who was a very clever Ogre, and who was always thinking of things his other brothers did not, knew that his mother, being a witch, could, if she chose, find the pearl for them, but because all three could not marry the Princess she had taken this way to settle the dispute.

So that night, after the three Ogres had been swimming and diving all day and had not found the pearl, the clever Ogre kept awake while his brothers slept, and when his mother began her night revel, as witches always do, he crept out of his bed and watched.

He followed the witch out of the castle and saw her dancing and singing about boiling pots over a fire, and then from the pot she took something and drank it.

Before she drank she held the cup high over her head and said: "Magic light, show me to the one who should find the pearl."

"You would think one of our difficulties would be getting the men to the operating table," said one of the surgeons. "But the reverse is true. They require no urging whatever. We notify a patient to be on hand at a certain time and he has a piece of bone extracted from his leg or cartilage from his rib, say, and he's always there ahead of time, impatient for us to begin."

A little chap limping from the operation on his shin was introduced as a case in point. He had lost his entire nose and part of his lower jaw in battle. At that moment two pieces of cartilage from his rib lay buried in his forehead. When the skin has grown over them they are to be cut loose except for a hinge through which the blood will still circulate.

The rougher trick that has been played upon him, still according to the fellow won his girl away from him while he was laid up following an operation.

"I'll get even with him when his turn comes," was Louis' rejoinder when this one was told.

Louis was at the moment threading a loom upon which he purposed to weave a rug from strings which when cut would produce an effect of countless multicolored balls. And I was shown I don't know how many baskets he had completed besides a tall reed lamp and shade painted with flowers, and some really exquisite bead work.

"What do you do with all these things?" I asked.

"I give 'em to 'em for hope and cheer," gaily responded the philanthropist.

Louis' full name is Larida Laridon—Danish, he is, and though he is just a little chunky fellow, you wonder they call him "the great Dane?"

In all of which, Louis' case being typical of the spirit exhibited by any number of chaps employed at games or craft work in the wards and recreation hall, there is evidence that feminine attentions are not lacking here. Mrs. Loker, who is hostess at the hut called "back to the wine cellar" where grape juice, buttermilk and bottled soft drinks were being got ready for the refreshment he serves to all who come twice daily.

But the Red Cross men say they see to it that there is no spoiling of the heroes. The invalids are in the wards and recreation hall, usually increasing strenuously as their strength permits. First, quarts, then indoor basketball, then medicine ball, then volley ball, simple exercises requiring no equipment so that they may be pursued after the patient is discharged. The spirit of rivalry gets in its work to the end that confidence is restored and the memory of suffering effaced, which is important along with the surgeon's work of removing the physical scars.

There are others in this house beside you people," Miss returned; "and I tell you frankly, I'm not ready yet to suspect any one or even imagine who the criminal may be. I only state positively that disembodying spirits are not responsible for those two tragic deaths. Also, may I ask you to remember, that I've only just arrived, that I've had a tiresome journey, that I'd like rest and refreshment, and that there are more days coming for my further work."

"Why, bless my soul!" exclaimed the Professor, "that's all true! Do you know, Mr. Wise, it seems as if you'd always been here, it seems as if you were already one of us."

"Thank you, sir, that's a pleasant compliment after my personality, anyway. And now, if you please, Mrs. Landon, may I be shown to my room?"

"Certainly," said Milly, and she rang for Thorpe, as Landon rose to escort the guest himself.

"Where's that girl," said Norma, looking round after the detective had gone off, "what became of her?"

But there was no sight of the little black-robed figure.

"Oh, let her alone," said Eve, "she slid out to the kitchen, I think. Hester will come after her. That man said to pay no more attention to her than to his hand luggage. She'll look out for herself, I've no doubt, isn't she awful, anyway?"

"I think she's pretty," said Norma, "in a weird, elfin sort of way."

"She knows it all," said Braye. "I never saw such an effect of old head on young shoulders in my life. But what a funny way to treat her."

"She's a spy! With her silent, gliding ways, and her sly, soft voice, I hate her!"

"Now, now, Evie, don't be unjust!" said Braye. "She is a bit of a spy and a temptress, but don't be jealous!"

"Nonsense!" said Eve, and Eve laughed back at him, "why she isn't a bit like me! She has black hair and eyes!"

"I didn't notice," said Braye, "but she impressed me as being like you back at him, why she isn't a bit like me! She has black hair and eyes!"

"A pocket edition," laughed Tracy. "Miss Carnforth would make two of that little shrimp, and Miss Carnforth is a slyph, herself."

The party broke up into smaller groups, and Braye and Norma sauntered off for their usual afternoon stroll.

Eve watched them go, her eyes moodily staring.

"Won't I do?" said Tracy's quiet voice, and Eve pulled herself together and smiled at him.

"You're the one I want most," she declared gaily, unwilling to be thought disappointed. "Let's walk down by the lake."

The walk by the lake was always shaded, but as the day was murky it was gloomier than ever.

"You like this place?" asked Tracy, with a glance at the black grove of aspens, and their dark reflection in the still water of the deep pool.

"Yes, I do, or, I did, until that man came up here. There's no use in pursuing our investigations with him around."

THE ROOM WITH THE TASSELS

"No," and now that they could see the girl, all noticed a slight smile of amusement on her young face. It was quickly followed by a look of horror in her black eyes, as she murmured, "What awful frights you must have had!" and she glanced at Milly in sympathy. Then she turned toward Norma, and seemed about to speak, but thought better of it.

Not looking toward his "property," Wise went on talking. "I can readily see how any one willing to believe in the occult could see these weird happenings into plausible proof. But it is not so. Miss Carnforth's own story convinces me even more strongly that there has been diabolical cleverness used, but by a human being, not a phantom."

"And you will discover how, you will solve the mysteries!" asked the Professor, eagerly.

"I hope so. But it is the most difficult appearing case I have ever encountered."

"It is not an eleven case, then?" and Prof. Hardwick told again of Andrew Lang's percentage of proof.

"No, it is not. It is one of the 19 that are the result of fraud. Now to find the perpetrator of the fraud."

"At least you must admit, Mr. Wise," said Eve, a little spitefully, "that your saying it is a case of fraud does not make it so."

"No," agreed Wise, smiling in an exasperatingly patronizing way, "sure does not. In fact it has already made itself so."

"And your discovery of the means used, is it not?" asked Tracy.

"Bound to come," repeated the detective. "But don't let us begin by being at odds with each other. I came here to discover the truth. If any one wants the truth to remain undiscovered, now is the time to say so. For it will soon be too late."

"Why should any one want the truth to remain undiscovered?" said Braye, abruptly.

"For two reasons," replied Wise, seriously. "First, any one criminally implicated might wish it to remain unknown; second, any one wishing to shield another, might also wish no discovery made."

"But you don't think any one of us are criminally implicated, I hope," and Braye looked questioning.

"There are others in this house beside you people," Miss returned; "and I tell you frankly, I'm not ready yet to suspect any one or even imagine who the criminal may be. I only state positively that disembodying spirits are not responsible for those two tragic deaths. "Honey, you're some cook."

These are the most thrilling words in the English language.

They spring from the very depths of a man's heart, just a fraction of an inch from his stomach. For centuries they have been the inspiration to better baking and lovelier meals the world over.

Such words are oftenest spoken where Valier's Enterprise Flour is used—for who couldn't do beautiful baking with such superlative flour.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 1.—The Cardinals drew first blood in their return engagement here, today, winning the morning contest, 5-4, squeaking out a narrow victory after having had a five-run lead in the second inning.

The Cardinals pounded Pitcher Miller hard in the first two rounds, scoring three runs in the first and crowding the bases for Hamilton, who relieved Miller in the second. Hamilton held the scoring in that round to two runs and allowed none thereafter.

Schupp, who opened for the Cards, weakened in the third and became very wild. Two walks, a wild throw and a double caused a two-run scoring rally, which was resumed in the fourth when he walked Cutshaw and let Terry single.

Here Rickey keeled the ire of the umpire and was ordered from the field. He took his place in a box directly over the dugout and a few seconds later ordered Doak to stop the rally at one run and holding the enemy safe for the rest of the journey, allowing but one additional tally.

Recruit Rolla Maple Shows Big League Caliber on Hill, Though Beaten by Tigers, 4-1

Young Hurler From Joplin Allows Ten Hits, but Has Only Two Bad Innings—Turns Back Ty Cobb Four Times Without a Swat and Walks Only Four Men.

When the Browns recently purchased Rolla Maple, pitcher, and Pat Collins, catcher, from the Joplin club of the Western League, Rudy Hulswitt, manager of Joplin, wrote Bob Quinn that Collins was the real prize, but that Maple was getting better with each out "and might come through."

The recruit flied yesterday received his baptism in the "big ring" and "came through" in great style, though beaten by the Tigers, 4-1.

While Maple did not exhibit a White John fast ball, he had a cross-fire, good curve, used the change of pace to good effect and exhibited control. Facing Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the champion batter of the A. L., for the first time in his career, Maple turned the Tiger star back four times without the semblance of a safety.

Manager Burke did not pick any spot for the youngster when he sent him against the Tigers, as the baseball world knows that Jennings is the hardest-hitting aggregation in either major league. While Maple yielded 10 safeties, he pitched only two bad innings—the first and the ninth. A triple play saved him from possible trouble in the second.

Ayers Puzzles Browns.

Maple's downfall in his major league debut can be attributed to the sensational relief pitching of Doc Ayers, who has always proved a hard nut for the locals to crack. Ayers replaced Slim Love in the second inning, with a Brown on the paths and one in. In the 7-13 rounds he labored, the Burkenes could get only three safeties.

The former Joplin southpaw started the contest by passing Owen Bush, a bad man for any hurler to pitch to, owing to his size. Young sacrificed and then came Cobb. The test of the A. L.'s leading batter could be was to pop to Gerber. But Veach's single scored Bush. Helmsman was hit by a pitched ball and Lagstad came through with a safety to center, on which Veach tallied the second run of the inning.

Starting the second round it looked bad for Maple, when Al Smith and Love started with singles. But then came the Browns' three-pitch killing. Bush lined to Gedeon, who fell as he fielded the sphere, but threw to Gerber for this position, nailing Al Smith. Gerber's fast relay to Love completed the third out. It was one of the prettiest plays seen here in this season. Gedeon caught the liner close to the grass.

Browns' Rally Nipped.

The Browns' half of the frame promised much, but was stopped dead when Jennings sent only Ty Ayers to the hill to replace Southpaw Love.

at second, Lavan was caught napping. Schmidt to Whitted to Cutshaw. Clemens taking third. Hamilton tossed out Mollwitz. NO RUNS.

PITTSBURG—Caray was out. Mollwitz to Doak who covered first. Southworth singled to right. Whitted beat out an infield hit. Southworth stopping at second. Barbare struck out. Whitted taking second and worked. Whitted taking second and Southworth third; Southworth then scored on Clemens' wild throw to third. Cutshaw hit in front of the plate and Clemens tossed him out. ONE RUN.

SIXTH INNING.

CARDINALS—Hamilton knocked down Doak's liner and threw him out at first. Schultz flied to Bigbie. Heathcote lifted to Southworth. NO RUNS.

PITTSBURG—Doak tossed out Terry. Hornby tossed out Schmidt. Miller tossed out Hamilton. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING.

CARDINALS—J. Miller lined to Terry. Hornby bunted, but Schmidt threw him out. McHenry singled to right, but was out stealing. Schmidt to Cutshaw. NO RUNS.

PITTSBURG—Doak tossed out Bigbie. Caray walked and went to second on Doak's wild throw to catch him napping. Southworth lined to Lavan, who touched second and doubled. Caray. NO RUNS.

EIGHTH INNING.

CARDINALS—Clemens flied to Caray. Lavan dropped a single into the box. Mollwitz grounded to Whitted. Lavan's second. Doak struck out. NO RUNS.

PITTSBURG—Whitted popped to Miller. Barbare fanned. Hornby threw out Cutshaw. NO RUNS.

NINTH INNING.

CARDINALS—Schultz singled off Barbare's gloved hand. Heathcote forced Schultz. Schmidt to Terry. Heathcote stole second. Terry tossed out Miller. Heathcote taking third. Cutshaw tossed out Hornby. NO RUNS.

PITTSBURG—Doak tossed out Terry. Schmidt out same way. Lee, hitting for Hamilton, flied to Schultz. NO RUNS.

In Kankakee he'll make his home and then he'll take a trip to Rome where he will pitch his tent. At Oskaloosa he will dock. And he'll like to Little Rock to be a resident.

Points of Interest.

We trust the Arrangement Committee will not fail to route the President over Shaw avenue and let him see our great old garage.

Home runs are all right when made by the home team. Otherwise they don't arouse much enthusiasm.

When the home team is home-runned out of three games in as many days the festive four-bagger begins to pall on one as it were.

Enough is enough but too much is a surplus.

Bill Teale, Australian heavy, is being considered as a prospective opponent for Jack Dempsey. Teale is said to be there like a duck.

Runner-Up in Spring Classics Again Fails to Play Up to Form, Losing to Roan.

Perhaps the most unexpected shock of the local golf season was the defeat in the first round municipal golf championship match play yesterday of Richard Bockenkamp, runner-up in the Western and Trans-Mississippi championships. T. P. Roan, a municipal links player, overcame the promising youngster, 4 up and 3 to play.

Bockenkamp is "overgolfed," according to his friends, and has not been able to do himself justice since his remarkable showing at Country Club and Sunset Hill links.

Yesterday he was 1 up on Roan at the turn, with a medal of 43 to 43 over his opponent. Coming home Bockenkamp played in bad form and had luck and went to pieces, while Roan bettered his usual good game, scoring an "eagle" on one hole.

John Haman defeated the youthful Vincent Nettler 2 up, thereby securing the first round will be found below.

Today's pairings will bring out a good match between Walter Kossman and Jimmy Manion; Eddie Hild will be Roan's opponent. The statistics follow:

FAIRGROUND PARK NET TEAM WINS INTERPARK TITLE BY ONE MATCH

When the Fairground tennis team captured one out of five yesterday in the inter-park tennis tournament, it was a victory of sorts. The team, which is made up of inter-park tennis title, thanks to a better score run up at the expense of other park opponents.

Fairground, although owing a big lead, was not favored to win, as Forest Park was expected to capture every match. The only defeat suffered, and the one that cost the title, resulted when Elmer Schwarzw succumbed to Ted Heurman, 3-6, 6-3.

Schwarzw had previously played a hard morning match and was exhausted. After taking the first set in the afternoon he wilted.

The other matches resulted as follows: Harvey Froelichstein won from Maffitt Minnesota, 16-5, 6-4.

Ray Hollingshead defeated Ed Heurman, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

1127 SERVICE MEN APPLIED TO
BUREAU FOR JOBS LAST WEEK

919 Applicants Were Placed in Positions With 1500 Remaining
Out of Work.

The Demobilization Bureau for Soldiers, Sailors and Marines, at 110
North Ninth street, last week received applications for work from 1127 returned soldiers, sailors and marines, the largest number registered in one week in the last six months. The employers also asked for more men than in any previous week, filing 1112 applications for men. Of the number registered the bureau placed 919 men, leaving 208 out of employment, bringing the accumulated number out of work to about 1500.

The growing list of the unemployed has become a matter of grave concern to M. J. Walsh, chief examiner in charge, who stated that every man could be given employment if the employers would cooperate fully with the bureau. The telephone numbers are Olive 7240 and Central 7556. Most of the available jobs are registered by employers by telephone.

The unseasonably cool weather does not indicate the end of the warm season or the close of the period in which the helpless little wards of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund will need assistance. Several weeks of warm weather may yet be reasonably expected and the work for the babies must be supported. Even when the need for ice no longer exists, the supplying of pure milk is still essential and if the lives of scores of poor babies are to be saved it must be done by the people of St. Louis themselves.

The fund still lacks about $300 of reaching its $6000 goal, but this money will be raised within the next few days. The fund will not be closed until about Oct. 1, however, for it is hoped that close to $7000 will be subscribed. No considerable additions to the fund can be expected from the children of the city, their time and thought now being required for their school work, but they have already done a noble part in the action of the fund. The work of the children's work of saving babies' lives.
They have been the chief agencies in the raising of about $4500 of the $5700 now in the fund, and only those who have witnessed the little toys selling lemonade and managing various benefits for the needy babies, can realize the earnestness and energy they have devoted to the worthy work. The Milk and Ice Fund always will belong fundamentally to the children, but it would require only a small effort on the part of the older members of the community to help complete the extra $1000 which would give additional little ones the needed chance for life and health, and will mean a victory year for the Milk and Ice Fund.
Children's Show at 2100 Cherokee
Street Nets $26 for Fund.

A group of girls and boys brought their vacation period to a close by devoting an evening to aid the Milk and Ice Fund. They presented a show at 2100 Cherokee street which netted $26.20 and turned that amount into the fund. The workers were: Loretto, Helen and Henrietta Dierke, Elinor Schwartz, Otilia
Menerer, Johanna and Edward Tritschler, Margaret Strickland,
Grace and Lawrence Bullman, Mildred and Elmer Mocker, Ethel Thundum, Hilda, Allice and Elsie Schme-der, Martha Kahlert and Charlotte Hammel.

On Wednesday evening an ice cream festival for the benefit of the needy babies of the city was given at 3413 Eads avenue. Music was furnished by a talking machine, the use of which was donated. Ice cream, cake and lemonade were sold by Margaret Jackson, Margaret and George Needing, Marian Burge,
Helen Burch, Adele Baer and Randolph and Isabel Durham. Two cakes and a doll's hope chest were disposed of and the entire proceeds amounted to $18.50. Contributions are acknowledged from the Jersey
Farm Dairy Co., A. J. Schrader and
T. Hopfield.

Children of the 4000 block on Lexington avenue gave a show recently and earned $16 for the fund. Their names follow: Charles and Robert

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

ALWAYS THE GOAT

Whenever the trolley men go on a strike,
And the managers laughily say
They can tie up the lines for a month if they like
But they won't get a penny more pay.
The general outcome is always the same.
For whether the men get their raise
Or swallow the grouch and go back in the game,
The public is walloped both ways.

Whenever the railroad men voice discontent,
And their president says with a sneer
That he'll never come through with another red cent
If he don't turn a wheel for a year.
One side or the other wins out in the end.
But whether they grant or refuse
The wages for which the conductors contend,
The public, dear reader, will lose.

Whenever the milkmen get suddenly sore,
And swear with irascible uncton
That unless they are paid a little bit more
They plan upon ceasing to function,
Perhaps they will get it; perhaps they will not.
But what is the difference to us?
We know when it's over the public has got
To step in and pay for the fuss.

For whether the strikers declare it a strike
Or the bosses declare it a lockout,
We are sure in advance that the public's one chance
Is to put up its chin for the knockout.

LIFE'S LITTLE JOSES—NUMBER SIXTY-THREE.—By GOLDBERG.

BINGUS MCFADDEN RUSHED DOWN TO THE STATION.
HE WAS OFF ON A WILD AND SPORTY VACATION.

HIS MOTHER REJOICED IN THE
FACT THAT HER BOY HAD THE COIN TO BLOW IN ON THE THINGS HE'D ENJOY.

NOW, SEPTIMUS BUSH WAS FLAT
BROKE, SO HE SAID,
"I GUESS I WILL SPEND MY VACATION IN BED."

HIS MA FELT ASHAMED THAT HER SON COULDN'T GO TO THE COUNTRY WHERE
FRAGRANT FORGET-ME-NOTS GROW.

BUT FATE IS PECULIAR—SHE TWISTS THINGS ABOUT,
WHEN BINGUS CAME BACK HE WAS ALL TIRED OUT.

WHILE SEPTIMUS FELT SO WELL—RESTED AND GAY
THAT HE WORKED TWICE AS HARD AND GOT TWICE AS MUCH PAY.
